Prince Rupert the Warmest Spot in Canada.

One of the noticeable things in connections with the official meteorological reports is the variations in temperature at the different places along the Pacific Coast. None of the recording stations for some considerable number of weeks past has shown as high a temperature as Prince Rupert. This city has been from four to ten degrees higher than the larger cities in the south. In fact, there is no place on the coast which has disclosed a temperature showing the same mildness of the winter season as here. This fact is one, too, which makes itself evident on the coal bin. If the imaginative member who spoke of "Prince Rupert's ice-bound harbor" in Parliament knew of the mild winters here, he would possibly change his residence. The Pacific coast is much milder than the Atlantic and Prince Rupert is shown to be the mildest place on the Pacific, in Canada.

Would be There, But Stay Here.

Notwithstanding our mild winters, there are those amongst us who once in a while tell that they would prefer to live in a cold country. They like the cold. It is so dry, and crisp and invigorating. So it is, doubtless, and a whole lot more than that, too, which these people who like to be different choose to forget. Or else they have short memories. One thing is certain and that is that although they need travel only a short distance to get where the thermometer hovers around zero most of the time, they prefer to remain here. There is no great influx to the prairies for the winter. It is rather the other way around. For weeks at the end of the fall, every train is crammed with people coming out from the interior just to escape the winters. The delightfully cold and dry and crisp atmosphere inland is a thing to get away from, if possible. Actions speak louder than words.

Never Go North When You Can Go South.

The dictum "Go west, young man, and grow up with the country," which was so popular a few years ago, brings to mind another by an equally well known person. He said: "Never go north when you can go south." The whole trend of the movement of population in Canada has been West and North. And there are still vast spaces in the North yet unfilled, which may be, someday. Nevertheless few people have gone north from choice. Rather from necessity. They have said, "This place is become too strait for me; Give place that I may dwell." Conditions in Canada have been such that there have been more opportunities for the individual in the North. But from choice, the majority of folks would prefer a less rigorous climate.

R. R. No. 1, LORNE, ONT. "For over three years, I was confined to bed with Rheumatism. I treated with doctors, and tried nearly everything without benefit. Finally, I tried "Fruit-a-lives". Before I had used half a box I saw improvement; the pain was easier and the swelling started to go down. I continued taking this fruit medicine, improving all the time, and now I can walk about two miles and do light chores about the place". ALEXANDER MUNRO. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c.
