MUCH FUEL IN CANADA

Central Heating and Power Co-ordination Will Make it Valuable

TORONTO, Feb. 5:—Canada has unlimited resources of fuel which, not at present commercially sound, will become of extreme importance with the development of central heating units and the co-ordination of hydro-electric and fuel plants, declared Prof. E. A. Allcut of the University of Toronto in a paper before the Engineering Institute of Canada's annual meeting here yesterday.

At the same time the meeting heard of the municipal central heating plant in Winnipeg and the private central steam plant of the Toronto Terminal Railways Company, in papers by two other engineers.

Prof. Allcut pointed out that elimination of waste was one of the most important functions of the engineer. Under present conditions sub-bituminous coals and lignites comprise three-quarters of the fuel resources of the Dominion and other fuels, now largely wasted, are produced as by-products from various industries. A paper plant using 100 cords of wood a day, for instance, has 22½ tons of moist bark to dispose of. If this were pressed and burned the saving as compared with coal at $7 a ton would amount to $5,500 yearly.

Depends on Economies

The development of the low rank fuels must depend on the relative economies of importing fuel from other countries and using efficiently the fuels available in Canada, he admitted. But there were other factors—the necessity of conserving the natural resources and of production on an economic basis.

G. W. Oliver of Winnipeg, dealing with the central heating plant in his city, declared the main reason for establishing the plant was the desire to make use of the existing boilers of the steam electric standby plant during the winter months, adding to revenue. The Winnipeg plant, one of four in the province of Manitoba, now supplies the business district with heat and connects with 246 buildings.

J. A. Shaw of Montreal dealt with an entirely different type of plant, that of the Toronto Terminals Railway Company which supplies steam only to the Union Station, Royal York Hotel and associated buildings. A feature of this plant is the direct steaming installation in the locomotive roundhouse of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Toronoto, the first of its designs in Canada.
