whether Great Britain and France will stand side by side on these matters or whether the two nations will pursue separate courses.

Sor far as Great Britain is concerned in the matter of war debts. the opinion is that this nation might get a better deal by treating direct with the United States. There is also the factor of Premier MacDonald's evident desire for Anglo-Saxon unity.

Three weeks after the Lausanne conference, the disarmament conference is to be held at Geneva. In Europe there is a growing feeling that disarmament and war debt remission might well be made related subjects.
