THIRD ESCAPED CONVICT CAPTURED

DOMINION SECURITIES EXEMPTED UNDER AMERICAN PLAN

Senate Sub-Committee Takes Action Favoring Canada Investments

This Country Will Not Be Penalized Under Hoover Reconstruction Program Like Other Powers

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 7.—The United States Senate sub-committee on banking and currency has exempted Canadian governmental and corporation securities from the provisions of President Hoover's $2,000,000,000 reconstruction corporation which states that "no loans or advances shall be made on securities issued by foreign governments or corporations." Canada is the only foreign country so exempted.

Senator Carter Glass of Virginia stated yesterday that the action of the sub-committee was a compliment to Canada and a neighborly gesture.

Speaking further, Senator Glass stated that there was a moral responsibility on the part of the Department of State to American people who had lost billions of dollars owing to the slump in foreign bonds. Senator Glass charged the Department of State with permitting overborrowing on the part of foreign nations.

FORMERLY MINISTER

Dr. Forbes Godfrey Passes Away in Toronto Today at Age of 65

TORONTO, Jan. 7.—Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, aged 65, former minister of labor and health for Ontario, died last night. During his career in the provincial legislature he sat for West York (Toronto).

Born in the Township of York, March 31, 1867, the son of Rev. and Mrs. Robert Godfrey, the former Irish and the latter Canadian, the late Dr. Godfrey was educated at Owen Sound Collegiate Institute and the University of Toronto, taking a medical degree at the latter institution. Later he was a general orificient medallist at the University of Edinburgh.

Practising as a physician at Mimico, Ont. the late Dr. Godfrey was first elected to the Ontario Legislature for the riding of West York on June 1, 1907. He was re-elected in 1908, 1911, 1914, 1919, 1923 and after assuming office as minister of labor in the Ferguson government on July 16, 1923. He was, of course, a Conservative.

The late Dr. Godfrey is survived by a widow who was formerly Miss Mary M. Carson. They were married in 1894. Dr. Godfrey was a Methodist and he made his home at Mimico.

PASSING OF ROSENWALD

Great American Merchant Prince Died Near Chicago Yesterday—69 Years Old

Was Philanthropist

Gave Millions to Charity—Simple Instructions For His Funeral

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—Julius Rosenwald, aged 69, famous merchant prince and philanthropist and multimillionaire, died at his home near here yesterday. He had given $25,000,000 to benefit humanity.

Rosenwald's final instructions as to burial were in keeping with the simple way in which he lived. He requested that he be given a small and inconspicuous funeral.

Julius Rosenwald devoted many millions of the dollars which he amassed in business, to hammering at racial and creedal prejudices and to encouraging thrift.

"The besetting sin of America is extravagance," he said over and over again.

His earning power started in 1873 when he pumped a church organ at Springfield, Ill., for five cents an hour. It culminated in 1910 when he became head of the Chicago mail order house of Sears, Roebuck & Company.

He built up this business until its annual turnover exceeded $300,000,000 and its branches could be found in almost every sizable town from coast to coast.

In the interim he had been a newsboy in Springfield, a clothing store clerk in New York, a shop keeper on Fifth Avenue and a manufacturer of men's clothing.

His philanthropies grew with his income. They centred largely in efforts to aid negroes in the United States and Jews in foreign lands. But his giving had no set bounds and gold flowed generously from his purse to whites as well as blacks and to Gentiles as well as Jews.

Buildings at the University of Chicago and the Rosenwald Industrial Museum testified to his civic helpfulness. His work as a dolla, a year man in the world war and a gift of $1,000,000 in 1913 to the Council of Grain Exchanges for research work in crop improvement, were evidences of his patriotism. But his delight was in helpful philanthropy.

"Charity," Mr. Rosenwald said, "is the one pleasure that never wears out."

He practiced this precept until (Continued on Page Two)

Frank Sorge, Who Got Away From Okalla, Is Located in Vancouver

Was Considered "Second in Command" of Quintet Which Got Away From Okalla Last Sunday—Bagley Still at Large

VANCOUVER, Jan. 7.—Frank Sorge, aged 27, one of five prisoners who escaped from Okalla Prison last Sunday night, was recaptured by police this forenoon in the bush near the home of his father in the east end of the city. Although armed, Sorge offered no resistance when the officers proceeded to take him. Sorge, when he escaped, was awaiting appeal from a conviction and consecutive sentences of four years on each of two charges of having burglars' tools in his possession. When he was originally arrested he put up a terrific fight against detectives when they forced their way into his room in a local apartment house.

Sorge was considered second in command of the quintet which escaped, the leader being William Bagley who, with Gordon Fawcett, is still at large. William Martin Kearney and Norman A. Moore were recaptured on Monday.

Unique Scene in Municipal History of Canada as Mayor Taylor Opens 1932 Council

VANCOUVER, Jan. 7.—Characteristically indomitable, Mayor Louis D. Taylor, lying motionless in an invalid chair on which he had been taken from St. Paul's Hospital, covered by a heavy grey blanket, eyes looking upward at the ceiling, presided at the inaugural sitting of the 1932 city council of Vancouver and swore in six aldermen-elect.

It was a scene probably unique in municipal history of Canada.

The Mayor said that he believed he would be able to walk in about two weeks. It was his first public appearance since last July when he suffered a sunstroke at the opening of the Lulu Island airport.

Peace River Paper is Again Out Favoring Province for North

Urges People to Develop Backbone Instead of Wishbone and Demand Right to Develop Own Resources

In its New Year editorial, The Peace River Record sends out a clarion call to the people of Northern Alberta and Northern British Columbia to demand the right to form a new province with Prince Rupert and Stewart as its ports. It draws attention to the manner in which the north country has been treated by both provinces and urges local autonomy. The editorial says in part:

"To the Peace River country the passing of 1931 has merely marked another year of delayed promises—another year of inaction in bringing to this country the development it requires to reach its full fruition, the development that has been promised time and again.

"As periods of difficulty bring us to clearer methods of thinking perhaps the continued inactivity of our governments in the matter of Peace River development may impress upon the people of the north country the necessity for doing our own thinking, and our own acting. Instead of hoping and wishing for the building of a coast outlet, perhaps after a while we will learn to remove the wishbone from the place where we should have a backbone, claim the right to work out our own problems, secure our own autonomy and proceed to develop the vast wealth of our own country and to work out our own destiny.

"The Peace River country from the 54th parallel of latitude northward, together with its sister territory, the portion of British Columbia immediately to the west, contains such a vast storehouse of wealth in resources as is to be found in no single province of Canada. Through its main waterway, the Peace River, it has an artery for the opening up of the still greater wealth of the North West Territories, the development of which should be carried on from Peace River, and the products of which should find their way out through Peace River and the ports of Prince Rupert and Stewart.

Provinces Fail
"The provinces of British Columbia and Alberta have failed in their responsibilities as administrators of this vast area, and have demonstrated their inability to properly administer the vast territory which was taken from Rupert's Land and the North West Territories and added to their areas when they were given their autonomy. As an experiment in increasing the scope of provincial government, the enlarging of provincial boundaries has been anything but successful. This being the case, and the dominion government having also failed in its responsibilities, it is but reasonable to suggest that the time has arrived when it is fit and proper that the experiment launched in 1905 be abandoned, and that the boundaries of the province of Alberta be reduced to their old limits returning that portion formerly belonging to Rupert's Land and North West Territories to its original state. This area, or a corresponding area to set apart the Peace River country, together with the similar area in British Columbia, has its own problems of development that can best be worked out by its own people.
