

TRAINED NURSE BROKE DOWN

Nervous Gone, Margaret Owings Learned Value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—Mrs. O'Connor Likewise.

"I am a trained nurse," writes Margaret Owings, of Edmonton, Alberta. "One year ago, in the midst of one of my busiest seasons, I collapsed. I was a total wreck; my nerves gone. Best and ordinary treatment failed to restore me. I knew that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were good, but did not realize how really beneficial they were until I started to take them. The change in my condition was wonderful. The color came back to my cheeks. I am stouter by 20 lbs. than six months ago, and stronger."

Strenuous days have no effect now upon my nerves. I am again nursing, thanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Mrs. James E. O'Connor, Godfrey, Ont., writes: "After my first baby was born, I had a breakdown. I could not sleep, eat or sit still. One day a neighbor told me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Before I had one box taken, I was feeling better; I continued taking the Pills until completely well. I also give them to my growing girls, with great benefit."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills earn such praise as this because they actually rebuild health by enriching the blood. Nervous, rundown conditions yield to the blood-building properties of this long-tested remedy. Young girls are wonderfully helped in their growth and development. SCHOOL GIRL WAS USING ONLY ONE EYE

This is quite a common occurrence with people who think they have real good eyes. Local school girl did not think she needed glasses but examination by Geo. F. Davey, Reg. Optometrist in charge of the Optical Dep't. of Max Heilbroner, Jeweler, showed her left eye to have very poor vision and not in use at all. Proper glasses not only brought the eye back to normal vision but removed the great danger of the eye turning to a case of "Cross Eyes." An examination will give you the facts about your eyes and our charges are very reasonable.

BUYING OF LABRADOR

Canada Must Buy It Or Else German Syndicate May Obtain Control

OTTAWA, Feb. 22—Canada must choose, within a few months, between purchasing the territory of Labrador for $100,000,000, or seeing its incalculable power and timber resources pass for 99 years into the control of a German syndicate.

Such is the ultimatum which has been submitted to the federal authorities here by Sir William Coaker, minister without portfolio in the Newfoundland government, which owns Labrador.

Canada has already been offered the territory at the price specified, but has hesitated to pay it in view of existing economic conditions. In some quarters it has been hinted that Ottawa is hoping to see Newfoundland enter the Canadian confederation; but Coaker declares there is no possibility of this.

An Acute Crisis

Newfoundland, he admits, is in acute financial difficulties at present; "but," he insists, "rather than sacrifice political independence we will struggle on for years in poverty."

Coaker reveals that a German syndicate has already offered $100,000,000 for 99-year rights to Labrador's resources, but states that Newfoundland felt itself bound to give Canada refusal of the purchase, with a warning, however, that the offer cannot remain open long.

The Grand Falls, on the Hamilton river, in Labrador, it is estimated, produce 5,000,000 horsepower which will be worth $250,000,000 as soon as wireless transmission of electric power becomes practicable, which engineers predict will be within a very few years.

Coal and Pulpwood

In addition, Labrador's pulpwood resources would be sufficient to supply the four 1,000-ton mills daily, and the district is known to be rich in coal deposits, while the presence of gold and other valuable minerals is also hinted.

Now highly prized for its industrial possibilities, Labrador in bygone centuries was regarded as a more or less worthless pawn and was several times traded from Newfoundland to Canada and back again. Canada still claimed ownership of the area, which is a part of the Canadian mainland, until the ruling of a privy council two years ago awarded it finally to Newfoundland.

This session of Parliament here is likely to see a strong demand by Liberal members for light on the government's negotiations with Newfoundland, and also as to the possibility of the latter's being invited to become the tenth province of Canada.

"How do they do it?"

Among your friends there's sure to be at least one smart young married couple who are the envy and admiration of all who know them.

With an income that is frankly abbreviated, and with no benevolent Aunts in the offing, they still have a home that is correct and comfortable in all its appointments, a home that is admired and copied by their friends.

"Yes, Jane is a remarkable little manager," will probably be the young husband's proud answer. And there is little doubt about it.

THEY DO IT THIS WAY

Take a look around that home and you will find no end of well known advertised products. For Jane is an efficient little manager. She can't afford to take chances that must only be debited to "Experience." When she buys for her home she must get tried and tested and trusted products which carry an honorable name to guarantee her satisfaction.

You will find that Jane is a consistent reader of the advertisements. Are you?
