MARKET FOR PRODUCTS

British Columbia has a number of commodities which were founded on this premise and it can sell to the world such as fish, timber and minerals. With conditions as they are today it is difficult to sell anything. The price of food products is so low that the producer gets next to nothing. The demand for minerals has fallen until gold seems to be about the only metal that has a cash value sufficint to make mining profitable. Timber is different. There would be a demand for it in Britain leagues from Manitoba to the Roewere it not for the underselling of some of the European herds, would grow wheat successcountries where the rate of wages is so low as to make fully. Weeds are a serious drain on the finances of the farmer and gardener and anything that can be done to check the menace means money in the pockets of those who cultivate the soil. The issuing of the publication seems to be work along right lines.

GOOD CROPS BEST CURE

One of the best cures for a good many weeds is to have a good crop of something more valuable that will choke out the weeds, not allowing them room to grow. Of course the maralist will say the same thing of life. The way to keep within the narrow path of virtue is to keep so intensely busy with other things that vice has no opportunity to take a hold. It is only when the crop is light that the weeds make progress. If the crop is heavy the weeds almost disappear.

Vancouver Financial Paper Declares That Development Of North Badly Needed Now

If there is to be any great accession to the wealth of cities on the western transportation slope of Canada it $6.00 must come through the development of Northern British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan says an editorial article in "Financial News," published in Vancouver. If there were not a lack of faith in the north country's future the Pacific Great Eastern Railway long ince would have been built through o Peace River and another line would have traversed the Omineca and Cassier regions to Stewart at the head of Portland Canal. Peace River would eventually support them both, just as the fertile prairies have supported the colonization line of steel that ran westward from Winnipeg and brought down great wealth and growth to the cities and factories of old Canada.
