Of course, no one questions but that the railroads of Omaha, cup. have a method in their madness, and do not expect in the end to be the loser by paying taxes on the real value of their property.

CARRIE NATION But the incident is a refreshment to us. It also shows the remarkable manner in which railroads can alter their pleas to suit their interests. Prior to 1907 when the terminal tax law went into force in Nebraska, the railroads were as little loth as the G. T. P. to pay Expires This Time at Leaveneven a very low assessment without a struggle to get it still further reduced.
