WHAT IS NEEDED

It has been pointed out that we cannot float back to prosperity on waves of optimism. Payrolls are needed even more than cheerfulness, but we cannot expect payrolls unless we are cheerful and optimistic. No one looking for a place to do business would voluntarily choose a place where the people were without hope.

While we are not expecting good times to come suddenly they will certainly come again as soon as we have adapted ourselves to the conditions as they are today instead of trying to carry on as if there had been no slump.

TOURIST BUSINESS

While the business depression has brought about a slackening of the tourist business, we can still expect that many visitors will come this year and next and that the number will steadily increase after that. British Columbia will always be an attractive place for visitors and just now those in the United States who have cars can pay us a visit without much cost, especially at a time when their money is at a premium. And every visitor that comes will unit. help to bring about a more stable monetary condition.

Prince Rupert does not benefit from tourists to such an er that Tuesday next is the beginextent as the south because the highway remains uncom- ning of the spring months. pleted and the winter from which so much was hoped has been frittered away without any tangible results. Highway construction has not been advanced and there is little knife. hope of any big movement in that direction in the next two years. During that time we shall have to content ourselves with making the city attractive to those who come to us by water or by rail.
