OBJECTS TO WORK ON TRAIL

Editor, Daily News.—It is understood that the projected trail or road to the summit of Mount Oldfield has been suggested to be included in the relief program. Under the new agreement the unemployed, married or single, would have nothing to show for their labors. They will only have the memory of wet weather, wet feet, and will have neither the spirit nor equipment to take part in the winter sports that the road is intended for. Those who are so keen on sport can easily borrow the tools and a few hours' work each week would make a trail sufficient for their purpose. To ask the unemployed to work on a project of this sort, the utilitarian value of which is nil, is an imposition. The personal records of the majority of the unemployed will bear witness that it is not through laziness but through principle that they demur at being asked to work without pay. This will not bring back good times. A nation's best market lies within its own boundaries and, if the mass of the people is deprived of purchasing power, why abuse them further? Shelley's lines on "Slavery" apply today as forcibly as they did a hundred years ago: "Tis to work and have such pay 'As keeps life from day to day 'In your frame as in a cell 'For the tyrant's use to dwell." Roads built under such conditions are in the same class as the slave labor of Egypt and Rome—regardless of the humanitarian aspects—the effect it has on men to be forced to work for nothing, men who have been brought up with some measure of self-respect and respect for their country's laws and institutions. This is a case not only for organized labor and the employed worker to unite with the unemployed worker but should be taken up with all parliamentary representatives and candidates as to what sort of society is desirable—free men or serfs? A road to Mt. Oldfield under these conditions would be an everlasting disgrace! CHARLES CHAPMAN.

REVENUE HOLDS UP

Customs and Excise Collections For First Half of 1933 Considerably In Excess of Last Year

Although customs and excise revenue at the port of Prince Rupert for the month of June this year was somewhat lower than in the same month last year, the revenue for the first six months of 1933 is still considerably in excess of that for the first half of 1932. In June this year the revenue was $16,266.28 as compared with $20,239.78 in the same month last year. So far this year the revenue has aggregated $84,501.14 as against $69,202.75 in the first six months of 1932.

City Fire Dep't Busier This Year

Responded to Seven Alarms During June, Total Loss For Month Being $725.

The city fire department responded to seven alarms during the month of June as compared with four in the same month last year. So far this year there have been a total of 53 alarms as against forty in the first six months of 1932. Fire damage in the city for June this year is placed at a total of $725, fully covered by insurance. There was damage from a roof fire at the residence of Delbert Lund, Beach Place, and in a blaze in the Capitol Baby Shoppe in the Federal Block.

CHENOSKI LOST OUT

But Local Lightweight Put Up Game Fight Before Yielding Technical K.O. at Ketchikan

According to radio reports last night, Pete Chenoski of this city suffered a technical knock-out in the sixth and final round of a boxing main event at Ketchikan at the hands of Eddie Quanto, tough Filipino lightweight, whom he was called upon to take on at the last minute. Chenoski is said to have made an impressive showing which went over strong with a crowd of some four hundred or so fight fans.

SPORT CHAT

Last Saturday evening's pugilistic entertainment at the arena of the Empire Social Club marked Harry Macey's debut as a promoter in the local cauliflower industry and there was a large and appreciative audience on hand. There was plenty of action in the card, all but one of the six bouts on the program going the full time. The crowd of fans taxed the capacity of the arena and augured well for the proposed revival of the boxing business in Prince Rupert. Native people were much in evidence, being attracted, no doubt, by Bright being one of the headliners while Indians were also featured in a special event.

Nina Gurvich had nothing to worry about at any stage of the main event with Steve Bright of the Naas River. He was much too clever for the rushing native who forced the fighting a good deal of the way and showed plenty of spirit and a real willingness to mix things up. The native boy displays plenty of courage and promise, has a good, useful left slash and, with some proper training and management, looks like he has possibilities for developing into a real boxer.

Bright rushed Gurvich from the opening gong. Nina covering up and letting the native swing on him. Bright soon slowed up and then Nina opened up and sent him to his knees with a right swing to the jaw. The Indian looked surprised. It was the only knockdown of the bout. In the second, Bright got in a few light backhand slaps to the face with his left. Nina responding with hard rights to the cheek. The third was slow as Nina showed a tendency to lay off. Bright took advantage of the opportunity and won this round with lefts to the face which did not hurt Nina much.

They mixed it hard and fast in the fourth. After Bright had led vigorously with head clouts, Nina gave him a bloody nose with some hard rights. It was the first blood. The fifth was again rather slow. The native was tiring and beginning to hold on. Gurvich took the points on such action as there was. The Indian rushed in at the opening of the sixth and forced Nina against the ropes but Nina continued to administer stiff rights to the face, holding Bright off a couple of times with his left to do so. Before the opening of the sixth round, Jack McEvoy was introduced to the audience as a challenger of the winner.

Bronson Hunt did the leading pretty well throughout the semi-final, rushing hard in the first round and obviously distressing Chuck Hickey with right uppercuts to the chin. Bronson slowed up in the second and clinched, Hickey making the most of things in close. Hickey, landing more cleanly, gave a better account of himself in the third and had Bronson covering up. Hunt again did the leading in the fourth but Chuck was better on infighting.

Wesley and Ames, the Indians who staged a special event, would have been good in a wrestling match. The crowd got a kick out of the thing. Ames is said to be a deaf mute but he is no dumb bell as far as wanting to slug is concerned and had it not been an exhibition, he would have been fairly called the winner.
