THEY LOVE A HORSE RACE

Most English people love a horse race. It is the sport of kings but also it adds to the enjoyment of life for thousands of the humblest subjects of the king.

There was a time when people had to apologize for keeping up horse racing by saying that it encouraged the while Smith was good in the field. breeding of high grade horses. Today the same people admit that races are won or lost just for the fun of the thing and not for any other motive.

With the whole world gradually turning to sport as an ball. "outlet for their energies, as the length of the working day shortens, horse racing holds its own, not because people can join in it but because they love it.

The ideal recreation is one where many take part. Foot- 2nd; Dell, cf.; W. Should Adolph Hitler prove to be the strong man he pretends to be and should he gain wisdom with responsibility, the dictatorship may be a great thing ty 1. for Germany, but shoud he be carried away by the trust placed in him, there is an awful doom ahead, a doom that will be also suffered by many of his countrymen.

VETERANS' PENSIONS

There seems to be an injustice in the recent budget proposal of the Bennett government in cutting off the pensions of those veterans who are employed by the govern- day o. ment. If the government employees were better paid than others and if the service were more attractive in any other way, there might be some justification for the move. It is only at a time like this that the government service is attractive.

Here is the way one veteran puts it. The government is keeping faith with the money lenders, the bond holders, but not with the men who fought for the Empire when they were needed. He asks if the veterans have not at least as good a claim on the administration as the men who 0. did not fight but instead loaned their money to carry on the war and received a high rate of interest for it. The men who fought did not receive a high rate of pay for their services. It was scarcely a living allowance, yet many never returned and of those who did there are many who poned. bear with them the scars of wounds made by the Germans or by the dread diseases of the trenches.

We have no sympathy with the parlor veterans such as are many of the U.S. pensioners but the men who fought should be treated with every possible consideration.

SOFTBALL

Senators Open by Decisively Defeating Tigers 15 to 2 in High School League

On Thursday afternoon the High School softball League resumed its schedule. The Senators took the Tigers into camp in a one-sided game. They came into the first game of the season with a flying start, collecting ten runs in the first inning.

The Tigers began to tighten up during the rest of the game and; only allowed the winners five runs. They were unable to bring in more than two themselves although the bases were often loaded.

For the Senators, Hanson and Bussinach were the heavy hittors. Allen in the box allowed only two hits but he gave several walks.

For the Tigers the batteries Tohey and Postulo played the best

Australian Girls Adopt Baseball

Not only Japan, but Australia as well has shown enthusiasm for the pastime of baseball. Even the Australian girls have shown a taste for the game, as witness Miss Rita Humphries, star pitcher for the Golden Eagles. She is warming up before taking the mound in a game between her team and another in Sydney.

In Tonight From Vital Creek Mines

J. F. Redmond, A. Evans, B. Formosa and Dave Cernak, who are expected to arrive in the city tonight from Smithers, came in from Vital Creek by way of Takla Lake, a distance of 160 miles. They state that their time was occupied largely in preparatory work. There was too much water there for successful work. They had to abandon a 40-foot shaft owing to being flooded

They see good prospects there and state that Chinamen have been making good money on the creek. They expect to return in about month when they expect conditions will have improved.
