GURVICH IS VICTORIOUS

Local Boy Too Smart For Steve Bright From Naas River in Six-Round Boxing Bout

Big Crowd

Harry Macey's Promotional Debut—Card of Lively Action Appreciated by Audience

Outsmarting his game and husky opponent, Nina Gurvich of this city (149 pounds) earned the unanimous decision of referee and two judges over Steve Bright, (160 pounds), Naas River native, in the six-round main event of the Dominion Day boxing card at the Empress Social Club Saturday night. Gurvich made good use of his experience, let Bright beat the air and do a good deal of useless leather-pushing and, from the outset, although appearing to be on the defensive a good deal, built up a long margin of points on actual blows.

Opening Events

In the semi-wind-up, Bronson Hunt, 150 pounds, and Chuck Hickey, 147, did four two-minute rounds, the referee and one judge calling it a draw while the second judge voted for Hickey.

Roil Barnes refereed the main event and the semi-final with Jack Judge and Dick Woods as judges. Wesley and Ames, a couple of Indians, did three rounds of very serious exhibition slugging which looked at times like a tribal war so anxious were they to claw at each other.

Bill Hogg, secretary of the unemployed councils, took three falls from Radcliffe in a barrel-boxing contest which proved brief but entertaining.

McLeod had bad luck to run into Worsfold's swing and a technical knockout at the very opening of the duce spot. In the curtain raiser, Peacock and Montgomery worked like little Trojans in slugging a three-round exhibition and put the crowd in good humor for the rest of the evening.

Dido Gurvich refereed the first four bouts, Roil Barnes was announcer for the evening and Max and Henry Heilbronner were time-keepers.

The crowd present taxed the capacity of the arena.

Mrs. Jessie Jacobs, who had been making the triangle tour to Jasper Park and Vancouver, returned to the city on the Prince George Friday.
