Impressive Services at Fishery Bay On Naas River

Athletic Activity

Marriage of Greenville Couple Another Feature of Proceedings

PORT SIMPSON, April 25.—Your correspondent happened to be in Fishery Bay which is the oolichan fishing grounds for all of the Nishga Nation, during the Easter holidays and was deeply impressed by the manner in which these people celebrated Holy Week. The writer arrived at that village on Good Friday just in time to go to the evening service which was observed in simple, solemn worship. The service had to be seen to be appreciated. The whole day had been devoted to religious meditations.

The next day, Saturday, the people returned to their work in connection with the fisheries and, that evening, the Church Army of the Village of Gilakdamiks, under the native officers, took charge of the services and many appropriate quartettes and solos were rendered as well as selections by the church Army Band all of which were in keeping with the season.

Easter Sunday broke a beautiful day and, with the early sunrise, came the strains of the band and choir parading in front of the village singing and playing an anthem "He Arose! He Arose!" This was followed by a simple service. The regular morning service was held in the church and the musical service was rendered by the Kincolith choir under the direction of James Stewart. The anthems were "King of Kings" and "Worthy is the Lamb," and there was a trio by Mrs. Arthur Nelson and Messrs. Stevens and Stewart. Reverend S. Kinley of Gilakdamiks preached the morning service.

In the afternoon the congregation of Gilakdamiks took charge and rendered a splendid musical service, both by the band and the choir which rendered the anthem, "Bells of Easter," "Worthy is the Lamb" and "Hallelujah Chorus." Captains James Adams, F. B. Tait and Lay-Reader Paul Mercer were in charge of the afternoon service.

At the evening service the church of Greenville had charge with the Rev. W. S. Cooper preaching and the musical program was rendered by the Greenville choir including the following numbers:

Soprano solo, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth." (Handel's "Messiah"), Mrs. Johnson Russ.
Chorus, "Since by Men Came Death" (Handel's "Messiah").
Duet, "O Death Where is Thy Sting?" (Handel's "Messiah").
Choruses, "Thanks be to God" and "Worthy is the Lamb" (Handel's "Messiah").

This concluded the religious services at Fishery Bay. Attending were about four hundred people from all over the district, some from Port Simpson, others from Alaska and from all of the other villages on the Naas River.

The Week Following

On Easter Monday the Greenville Citizens' Association, which had prepared an elaborate program extended to all a hearty invitation to come to the village of Greenville, which is only a few miles away, to celebrate the holiday. The association, under the direction of Chas. MacNeill and Fred McKay, had arranged a basketball tournament for which they had some very fine trophies representing the championship of the Naas River.

The first game played in the men's division was between Greenville Athletic Club and a Port Simpson team picked up from Red Bluff and Greenville was an easy winner.

The next game was between Kincolith and Gilakdamiks. This was an evenly contested game and the result was in doubt right to the end but Kincolith was at the last able to put in the winning basket which gave them the game.

The two winners were now billed to play on the following day in the finals.

In the women's or girls' division there were only two entries, one from Gilakdamiks and the other from Greenville. They were very evenly matched and the team from Gilakdamiks was always the more aggressive and, had they had better luck in their shooting would have won the series but, in the two-game series that they played, Greenville won both and they hold the title and trophy for this division.

In the juvenile division there were only two entries from Greenville and Kincolith and the series was carried by the Greenville team as well as the cup for this division.

On Tuesday morning the men's finals were to be played and the Greenville and Kincolith teams lined up to play but, owing to some misunderstanding between the two, Kincolith, rather than play, withdrew from the series and then Gilakdamiks took the floor in the place of Kincolith, and, both teams being very evenly matched, played a very fast game. At the end of the game, it was found that both teams were at a tie and another ten minutes of play was agreed on which enabled the Gilakdamiks team to score the winning points which gave them the series. All through the series was featured by very fast playing and showed the results of training. The officials and the players were very good and clean playing was prominent.

Marriage Solemnized

Right after the game, a marriage was celebrated between the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davis of Greenville and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam MacKay, also of Greenville, the service being conducted in the Anglican Church by Rev. Mr. Cooper. After the service a sumptuous banquet was served to about three hundred visiting guests in the Community Hall, the Greenville Concert Band being in attendance. There were guests from Port Simpson, Ketchikan, Alaska, Gilakdamiks and Kincolith.

In the evening the Greenville Citizens' Committee distributed the prizes to the winners in a very fitting way and it was announced that the entire proceeds of the sports program were in aid of the new church building and that they were able to realize something over a hundred dollars.

A very enjoyable dance was held, the music being by a splendid local orchestra.

That is the question . . . until you discover how easily you can roll a more enjoyable cigarette with Ogden's Fine Cut Cigarette Tobacco.

Easy rolling! Yes, but that's only half the story. Wait 'till you light up! Then you'll know why Ogden's Fine Cut has become first choice with so many men who roll their own.
