USK LOOKS TO FUTURE IN MINING

side. Up the mountainside less than half-a-mile from the railway to virtually drop ore from it to the track. This property owned by L. E. Moody, is under bond to R. W. Seelye & Co. of Seattle. Sheldon Glover, geologist, is in charge of development work which is proceeding in the way of sinking a shaft on the ore with a small crew of men at work. The expectation is that this crew may be increased at any time. Lucky Luke adjoins the famous Cordillera which is quiet at present but which, there is reason to believe may be heard from again with the improvement in metal prices.

In addition to Columario and Lucky Luke, there are other Usk mineral properties which will undoubtedly command attention once metal markets improve and not the least of these, it is felt, will be the Seven Sisters property which as the D. W. Mines Ltd., caused considerable excitement a few years ago.

Lindstrom, another New Hazelton prospector, was sent out to Takla Lake. There was grub in the McConnell Creek camp. Lindstrom, crosing three summits with a 30-pound pack, made the 125-mile trip from McConnell Creek to Takla Lake in five days, arriving at the latter point the day after Pilot Kenneth Dewar, with the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. plane, had made his first search flight for the Spencer machine. The next day, Dewar, taking Lindstrom on board, proceeded to North Fork Lake, on which he chose to land rather than McConnell Lake, eight miles distant, and took the two injured airmen and prospectors on board, delivering them to Takla Lake whence they proceeded via Fort St. James to the railroad at Vanderhoof, McCluskey and Staines going to Vancouver and McMillan and McLennan coming to their home here.

It is understood that Pilot McCluskey is to be provided with another Junkers plane with which to continue his flying operations for the Spencer prospecting and mining interests.
