REPORT ON CONVENTION

H. W. Birch Tells Local Hospital
Of Recent Gathering in Victoria

Hospital finances took a leading place in the discussions of the recent annual convention of the British Columbia Hospitals Association in Victoria, according to a report of H. W. Birch, managing secretary of the Prince Rupert General Hospital, to the local board at its regular monthly meeting last evening. The last year had been a trying one for the hospitals from the financial standpoint due largely to the reduction of the government grant to hospitals which the association had been endeavoring to have restored on its former basis but, so far, without success although it was quite apparent that hospitals could not continue to function without greater financial support. The convention had discussed, among other matters, further steps with a view to restoring the grant to its former basis, legalization of sweepstakes for hospital purposes, state health insurance and hospital insurance.
