'CAVALCADE' IMPRESSIVE ACTRESS IS DEAD

Capitol Theatre Crowded Last Night and Everyone Acclaims Fine British Family Life Picture

Louise Closser Hale Passes Away at Age of Sixty-One Years

GLENDALE, Cal., July 28.—

"Cavalcade" is really a great picture. The Capitol Theatre was crowded last night for its opening showing in Prince Rupert and all who saw it acclaimed it as truly fine. No one should miss it if for no other reason than that it is going to be widely discussed for a long time. But it should be seen anyway because it is so worthwhile.

A spectacular and stirring chronicle of the march of the epochal events of the first thirty years of the fast-moving Twentieth Century in relation to the affairs of a fine English family, "Cavalcade" essentially draws a pessimistic moral. It is decidedly in the spirit of the times. The fertility of war is emphasized by depicting in an impressive, yet not overdone, way something of the horrors of the Great War and its aftermath. The impression should not be taken, however, that it is essentially a war picture. As far as the war is concerned, it is incidental to a touching story of splendid family life. Many other of the events since the opening of the century up to the present date are graphically recorded. The attitude of the picture is intensely patriotic.

Diana Wynyard gives a flawless performance as Jane Marryot, the wife of a British Army officer of the Boer and Great Wars and mother of two boys—one of whom is lost on his honeymoon in the wreck of the Titanic while the other is killed on Armistice Day in the Great War. Miss Wynyard dominates the cast although Clive Brook as the soldier-husband is also splendid. Irene Browne, as Margaret Harris, a close family friend, is another notable member of the cast. "Cavalcade" can, without hesitation, be recommended as a picture which everyone should see.

Louise Closser Hale, authoress and veteran stage and screen actress, passed away at a local hospital on Wednesday at the age of sixty-one years following a stroke which she suffered while visiting the office of the family physician on Tuesday. Funeral plans were being delayed pending receipt of instructions from sisters in New York and Philadelphia.

Mrs. Hale, who was born in Chicago October 13, 1873, the daughter of Joseph and Louise Closser, was educated in the public school of Indianapolis and was married on August 17, 1899, at LaPorte, Indiana, to Walter Hale. She made her first appearance on the stage in Detroit in 1895 in George Bernard Shaw's "Candida." Numerous other stage successes followed and of late year, particularly since the advent of talking pictures, she had enjoyed great popularity on the screen in older and more dignified roles. She scored a great hit as one of the aunts in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" and also had appeared in a recent picture in a sister role to George Arliss.

Mrs. Hale's books, included "A Motor Car Divorce," "The Actress," "The Married Miss Worth," "Her Soul and Body," "We Discover New England" and "We Discover the Old Dominion." She contributed to numerous magazines.

PLANT LIFE OF RUPERT

Members of the Rotary Club listened with great interest yesterday to an all too brief talk on a few of the plants of Prince Rupert district by Richard Pillsbury, a graduate of the University of British Columbia, who is now taking a post-graduate course in biology at the University of Illinois. Dr. W. T. Kerigin presided.

On each table at the luncheon was a small centerpiece of plants including local orchids and specimens of the crow-berry, sundew, red sphagnum peat moss and butterwort. Two of these, Mr. Pillsbury explained, were insect eating plants—the sundew and the butterwort. These plants were all common to all sub-Arctic climates such as that obtaining at Prince Rupert but with slight variations.

The crow-berries are little black berries on a tiny low-growing plant which form the chief vegetable food for the Eskimos of Labrador. Six years ago, when the lemmings swept through the north country like a plague and destroyed all the berries, a disease followed among the Eskimos. This disease seemed to result from a lack of vegetable food.

The sundew was found in all bogs everywhere in the world. It secreted a kind of glue to which insects adhered. Long hairs curled around the victims which were digested by means of secreted juices. The butterwort also secreted a kind of muckage and the edges of the fleshy leaf curled around over the insect when it was trapped.

Mr. Pillsbury dealt with the matter of climate, showing that the damp summer weather was due to a low pressure area forming in this neighborhood. At times this was replaced by a high pressure area when dry weather followed.

At the conclusion, the thanks of the club were conveyed to the speaker by the chairman.

Vancouver Show Troupe Had Good Stand in Rupert

There were good sized attendances both Tuesday and Wednesday of this week when "The Strutters," an itinerant Vancouver entertainment troupe, staged the revue "School Days" in the Moose Hall. The program of music and novelties was very acceptable and on each evening there was a dance featuring the peppy "Rhythm Vendors," popular radio orchestra.

The show troupe, consisting of Miss Leone, Charles Farmer, Bud Miller, Charles Hewson, Bert Kershaw, Herbert Horner and the La Salle Sisters, will continue a northern tour which is to include stops at Anyox, Stewart, Hyder, Ketchikan and other points and intends to stage another show and dance here on the way south.

The Moose committee which assisted the troupe here consisted of Joe Slaggard, who acted as master of ceremonies for the dances, D. C. Schubert, who presided at the door, and B. J. Bacon.
