WHO BUILT THE HIGHWAY?

There are people in this city who see nothing good in the work that T. D. Pattullo has done for Prince Rupert. They have never admitted that he has accomplished anything. They have jeered at him, sniped at him, maligned him in the good old way told about by Charles Dickens but that he ever did one good thing they deny.

Such men weaken the cause which they support. In fact, they are a menace to any community.

Take the case of the building of the highway. We all know that when Mr. Pattullo was elected in 1916 there were very few cars in Prince Rupert and very few who expected to use a highway. It was looked upon as a needless expense. But Mr. Pattullo did not think so. He set about persuading his colleagues to lay out the highway and to commence work on it. It was several years before this was done but eventually the Oliver government agreed to the general principle of a highway through Northern British Columbia and committed themselves to its construction. Work was started in a small way and as public opinion was brought in line the work was speeded up with the result that five miles of road was completed and plans prepared for the bridge across the narrows.

Then the government was defeated and the Conservatives started out well and carried on the work, completing about two miles and doing considerable work on another mile, and building the bridge. Then the equipment was moved away or allowed to be stolen, the camp dismantled and the work stopped. There it is today with not the least sign of activity. At a time when the need for the work and the demand for the facility is increasing everything is shut down.

Mr. Pattullo has publicly stated that if the Liberals are elected the work will proceed and he has hopes that it will be completed within a very few years. He is not a man who makes wild promises but he pledges himself to the highway. If elected he will have the power to do the work, something that can be said of no other candidate. From past experience we know that when Mr. Pattullo sets his hand to do something he is likely to carry it through. He is the best bet for Prince Rupert just now.

SALMON GOLD MINES LTD.

One Chance in a Lifetime

Strikes are FOLLOWING IN RAPID SUCCESSION AT THE SALMON GOLD MINES. Stewart and Premier people are all excited over the latest find just announced. Samples are running very high in free gold and D. Campbell, superintendent of the Big Missouri, went over to see it and was much impressed.

In the first discovery of the Salmon Gold main zone general average values covering a length of 300 feet, width 10.96 feet, at present price of gold is $22.00 a ton, which means that for every foot of depth there is ore of a value of $5,918.00. With the main ore body just uncovered at 200 feet lower elevation than the present workings, if the ore body continues with the same values, the ore will have a value of $1,173,300.00. The vein at the 200 foot level has a width of 35 feet, well mineralized.

Vein No. 3 in eight open cuts gives an average value of $17.10 for a length of 320 feet and a width of 5.37 feet.

Four more parallel veins have been discovered, making the total of veins 12.

Capitalization, 3,000,000 shares of 50c par value.

Only 1,450,000 shares outstanding including this offering.

Shares selling now at 20c each, prices will be advanced to probably 50c by the end of the month.

EDUCATIONAL SITUATION IN CITY IS REVIEWED AT PUBLIC MEETING; TO BE LOOKED INTO BY COMMITTEE.

smaller fee within the means of the parent or guardian. Fifty dollars was too much to expect people who were unemployed or almost unemployed to pay. If the older people who had managed civic affairs had received the kind of education which parents of today desired to give their children, they would not have driven the city into the hands of the bondholders. He thought the commissioner was going beyond his powers, at least from a moral point of view. A high fee meant discrimination against the children of workers and in a democratic society there should be equal opportunities for all children.

No Reason For Tax

J. S. Black pointed out that the commissioner, on taking office, had accepted the mill rate set by the outgoing council. This included the estimate set by the school board for the current year. This estimate was accepted and was sufficient for educational expenditures. Moreover the school board had had a surplus of between $2000 and $3000. No by-law had been passed to allow of this money being spent for other than educational purposes. Hence for this year at least he could not see why there should be any reason for levying a tax upon school children.

City Treasurer D. J. Matheson gave a concise statement of school finance. The school rate of 18 mills was to bring in $66,900. Of this $44,000 had been collected to date. The government grant of $15,000 added to this made a total revenue of $59,000 for schools. On the other side, salaries and administration cost approximately $57,000. On top of this debentures on schools amounted to $17,000, making a total of $74,000. This left a deficit of $15,000 which must be raised somehow — by taxation, or contributions, or fees or some other plan.

Replies to a question from the chairman, Mr. Matheson stated that there could be no reduction of interest on bonds except by consent of the bondholders and an act of Parliament to ratify same. The city had in mind the refunding of part of the obligations so that only interest would have to be met for some years. In the meantime the schools could not operate without sufficient money. He suggested that an effort be made to help those pupils who were unable to pay.

T. Ross Mackay thought it humiliating to have to go around collecting money to pay for the education of children. Prince Rupert was really in a better condition than most municipalities and the commissioner's task was really not so difficult. Yet the whole economy appeared to be cut down the schools. The outgoing council, when it set the mill rate and accepted the school board's estimate, had obligated itself to raise the money. This obligation was still the first charge on the commissioner's collections. The bondholders should accept their losses just as business men were doing every day and as other people are doing.

He demanded an immediate sale of all property held in Prince Rupert by the provincial government. One block alone would have brought in enough taxes to pay the deficiency in the sinking fund and current indebtedness to the bondholders.

Would Pledge Candidates

Ex-Ald. Oscar Larsen advised that the citizens should concentrate in demanding from all candidates at the forthcoming election a pledge to amend the School Act so that there should be equal educational opportunities for all children from six years upwards. The commissioner considered that Prince Rupert was an outlying district engaged in fishing and mining and their children did not require a high school education.

Ex-Ald. S. D. Macdonald agreed with Mr. Larsen and believed that such a plan would carry more weight and do more good than many people thought. The situation should be weighed thoroughly, discriminatory legislation removed from the statute book and the School Act amended so that the children of the workers should not be excluded from high school education.

Mrs. G. E. Gulick suggested that, in the meantime, a drive be started to obtain work for boys and girls to enable them to earn sufficient money to pay their fees.

Among others who spoke, including the chairman, were Mrs. L. C. Eby, J. O. Williamson, Fred Hunter,

GET ALIVE TO FACTS

Editor, Daily News:

The remarkable fact that the changes in the social system in Russia, in Italy, in Germany, in the U. S. A. is centralized first in strengthening the authority of the state, thence its intervention in private economy to regulate the economic factors.

In the U. S. A. the Industrial Recovery Act now endorsed by the Trades and Labor Councils of Canada was the outcome of an orderly election. The U. S. A. had no extremists, no Communists, no Socialists; there was no display of force, no Mussolini or Hitlerism. The Democratic way has been sufficient, and will be sufficient.

We must get alive to the fact that the social and economic factors are dependent on the political factors.

It is within the power of man to shape its destiny. By changing the institutional organs of the state, the state can change social relations and social conditions. Just see how fast Roosevelt with the power of his codes is changing social relations and social conditions in the U. S. A.

The unfailing action of a true democratic hand is doing the work, not by recurring to old principles and old theories, but by just exercising a genuine human will-power inclined to serve the nation and the masses. What is most urgently needed is work at decent wages and not new confessional experiments of the C. C. F. style. We must admit that the Nineteenth Century individualism crumbles down, but the N.R.A. is the correction, not the C.C.F. True democracy can do the same in Canada.
