CARS OUT OF BUSINESS

Most of the cars in the city are either shut tight in the garages or in the repair shops. Merchants find it very difficult to deliver their goods and the taxis in their efforts to give the people service are pretty well out of business. The snow is so deep and the ruts are so difficult to drive in that most drivers have given up as a bad job.

Of course there are complaints that the city authori- leadership of Ernest F. Dudoward, hecking gave little chance for the More Entries ties are making no effort to cope with the situation. The difficulty is the lack of money to pay men to do the work. New Departure In Planes Imitates Bird

New competition for the denizens of the air appears with the first showing of this bird-like aeroplane, built by Jonathan E. Caldwell, shown above with his new departure in aeronautics. With three, wings on each side, substituting a rotary motion for the flapping action of the bird, the machine is balanced. Valves open on the up-stroke and close on the down-stroke, functioning pdecisely as the feathers in a bird's wing. Vertical or horizontal flight is dependent on the angle at which the wings are held. Caldwell believes mastery of the principle of bird flight will mean perfecting of the cheapest and safest form of air travel.
