REPAIRING STREETS

Many favorable comments are heard at the action of the commissioner in having the streets repaired. The down- be pushed forward with even greattown roads have been renovated and the outside points er intensity if the industry is stabare now receiving attention whenever the weather is fit for work. The result is that the shops are getting less work lation. replacing broken springs. Let us be thankful for small mercies.

SOVIET TIMBER

Most persistent reports come from Russia in regard to the conditions under which the timber is being produced which is sent to Britain to compete with the Canadian timber from British Columbia. It is stated on the authority of the men and women who produce it that the most appalling conditions obtain. The work is done by men, women and children who are underfed, are allotted impossible tasks, are without proper clothing and footwear and day. are so badly housed that it has become a scandal. The British government is being asked to investigate the conditions and to prevent competition of that kind which is an order for two new boats has been bound to drag down the Canadian worker.

BANKS OPTIMISTIC

Banks are not usually optimistic. Canadian banks particularly are known to be careful of their statements. Bank managers have had to cultivate a pessimistic attitude in refusing loans to clients and this has affected their whole careers. The result is that the average citizen is apt to discount their pessimism and when just now and then they stocks. become optimistic they know there is good reason for it.

Just now the banks are seeing improvement in Canadian conditions. They admit that the improved tone is contag- further work is being eagerly awaitious and that very soon will reflect itself in all lines of in- ed. dustry. Evidently the future must be glowing.

Optimistic Report of Royal Bank Shows Revival of Activity in Many Lines of Business in Canada Today

Tide of Business Has Turned and Will Quickly Flow to Areas Not Yet Affected—Optimism Helps Towards Greater Improvement

. The monthly report of the Royal-Bank of Canada just issued is very optimistic. It says in part:

With a rise in the prices of agricultural and mineral products, increased carloadings, a more than seasonal improvement in employment and an increase in both the volume and unit value of exports, the evidence seems to show hat the tide of business has turned to those parched areas which have
