They are racked between the alternate problems of whether given the children at Sunday they should support Tolmie, Bowser or Pattullo.

Mr. Pattullo, who, it is conceded will be tendered and accept the local Liberal nomination, the matter being merely a formality, is the only candidate in Prince Rupert riding who appears to have a united following. This is a most decided advantage in the fight and, with the further seeming certainty that his becoming premier of the province will only be delayed as long as the election is deferred, there would appear to be no doubt whatever as to the The Easter Sunday services came outcome of the local contest.

Certain as the result may be, however, Prince Rupert people may be expected to take the usual interest in the contest and the discussion of the grave problems which face the country today.
