

Stomach Trouble After Her Meals

Mrs. Collingwood Maynard, Port Hill, N.S., writes: "I suffered from pains in my stomach, and headaches, after eating my meals. A friend advised me to take Burdock Blood Bitters, and after having done so I found a great change in me. Now I never have any trouble with my stomach, and headaches are a thing of the past."

WHIFFLETS From the Waterfront

Skipper O. P. Smith, one of this district's well known and most popular salmon trollers and formerly a noted heavy hitter on the local baseball diamond, arrived in port yesterday from Vancouver, where he spent the winter, an expectant to again spend the season in local waters. Coming north from Vancouver to Inverness in his own boat, the Billy Boy, "O. P." left the vessel at the Skeena Slough cannery where it is intended to overhaul her before proceeding to North Island. Mr. Smith came on in here with Capt. Hughes on the troller North Arcadia, also, from Vancouver, and they will spend a few days here. It is the first visit to this port for Skipper Hughes who for many years was engaged in trapping and prospecting out of Akilvak and elsewhere in the Northwest Territories, and who for the past few years has been following the salmon trolling game. He also intends fishing this season at North Island. "O. P." is nursing a sore hand which he had the misfortune to have torn in his machinery on the voyage north. It is now mending nicely.

FIRE PLAN IS ALLEGED

fire was the clothes he stood in. There was considerable bickering between witness and defence counsel. J. T. Harvey, during cross-examination in the course of which witness stated that, while upstairs, he saw three separate fires.

Mrs. Perkins, recalled to the stand, identified a dress presented in court as one she had seen Mrs. Dawson, wife of accused, wearing at the Rebekahs prior to the night of the fire. She also said that a red mackinaw coat shown her was similar to one she had seen in the show window of accused's store.

R. G. Windt, another of the fire fighters, also told of finding fire in various parts of the building. He corroborated the evidence of Davidson in regard to clothes worn by accused at the time of the fire. After the fire accused had told witness how lucky it was that he had put on $5500 additional insurance. He also said that he had been able to get two armfuls of clothes out of the building.

Deputy Fire Marshal

Sergeant W. A. Walker, deputy fire marshal for the province, told of interviewing accused in Vancouver regarding the fire in February, 1931 in Vancouver. Accused had said that he did not know the origin of the fire but said it might have been caused by cigarettes as there had been a party in the store the night previous. He and John DeVoin had slept in the building on the night preceding the fire. His wife was at the farm of her father at the time assisting with the canning. The additional $5500 insurance had been placed, accused said, because he wished everything to be covered. There was $8500 insurance in all.

Charles Reid, banker, was recalled to the stand to identify signature of accused to an insurance statement of loss in which Dawson claimed that everything in the building had been a total loss, the loss amounting to $10,800 in all, and that the fire had been through no wilful act of his, accused's, or with his connivance.

Provincial Constable Oland told of taking charge of certain effects which accused said were the property of himself or his wife.

Mrs. Dorothy Lewis, sister-in-law of accused, identified two dresses, a bedspread, salt and pepper shakers, etc., as articles belonging to Mrs. Dawson, wife of accused, which she had seen in their living quarters shortly previous to the fire. Prior to the fire, maybe a couple of weeks, accused had said to witness that he was going "to have a damn good fire one of these days."

Shortly after the fire, Mrs. Lewis said under cross-examination, accused and his wife had left Smithers and were away for over a year, spending some time in Nelson, Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle.

Star Crown Witness

John DeVoin, brother-in-law of accused, gave details of the movements of himself and accused on the night preceding the fire and described the party at which there had been some drinking of hard liquor. The incident of the fitting mirror and accused's comment at that time was among those described. The party broke up about 11 p.m. and witness later went to a restaurant and returning to accused's lodgings about 1:45 a.m. went to bed. Accused did not sleep with him although the intention had been that he should. He did not remember anything after going to bed until accused called him at 5 a.m., stating that the place was on fire. The bedroom was full of smoke and witness hurried out. He assisted accused to get a tub of clothing out to the car and then went for the fire truck. He did not see accused again until after the roof had caved in.

Witness then told of the hunting trip when accused had disclosed his intention of burning down the store, seeking witness' assistance which was refused. Witness also told of driving accused to Hazelton a day or so after the fire so that he (accused) might board the train there and make the run to New Hazelton in order to see Williamson, who was the baggage man, and tell him what to say if police made inquiries regarding the breaking of the fitting glass. Accused had told witness to tell the police that they had planned a hunting trip for the next morning and that was why he (witness) had spent the night there.

DeVoin, identified a considerable quantity of clothes and effects, the property of accused or his wife, which had been in the living quarters of accused immediately previous to the fire.

DeVoin was subjected to an extensive cross-examination by defence counsel. He said that he himself had had about three drinks at the party. Accused had drunk very little. Accused had made the remark more than once that evening about burning the place down. When accused called him, his appearance was such that he might have just got up. Although there was but the one bed in the place, accused had not slept that night with witness. Witness admitted that he had been endeavoring to join the provincial police but stoutly denied that this had influenced him in giving evidence in the trial. He had at first "held back" evidence regarding certain matters from the provincial police but he had had it on his mind ever since and it had been worrying him so that when Sergeant Walker had come to him in Nelson last March, he had told him everything. Witness did not want to get himself into trouble. "Lack of drag," witness declared was holding up his application to get into the provincial police.

The full statement made by DeVoin to Sergeant Walker at Nelson regarding the fire and accused's statements to him, witness regarding his intention to burn down the building, etc. was presented to the court.

This concluding the evidence for the crown the trial was adjourned from 6:15 last evening until 10:30 a.m. today.

TRIAL IS NEAR END

Interest in burning down the building was the accused. That was shown by the evidence of Mr. Messner the owner of the building who was absent from town at the time of the fire and who had insured a $6,000 building for only $2,500. Dawson on the other hand had placed more insurance only a few days before the fire.

The whole story, as told by witnesses, was retold by Mr. McGill. The night before the fire Warner had seen accused oiling the floor between eleven and twelve o'clock at night and so much oil was being applied that Warner was led to remark on it. Later at one o'clock Dawson was seen in the store with the car outside and another witness saw him taking something out to the car early in the morning.

Evidence indicated that John DeVoin slept in the only bed in the building and that accused did not go to bed. In the morning, however, he wore different clothes, evidently for the purpose of creating the impression that he had slept.

The fire was discovered, DeVoin wakened and a tub of clothes was carried out. On arrival of citizens the fire was apparently extinguished in the store room but new fires were discovered upstairs and these eventually drove the fire fighters out and destroyed the building. One feature that was suspicious was that the back door had been looked after the tub of clothes had been carried out.

In conclusion Mr. McGill drew attention to the seriousness of setting a fire in a community of wooden houses such as that at Smithers. The wife and small child of accused were out of town on the night of the fire. Accused swore he had lost everything and went around half dressed to create that impression when all the time he had two suits of clothes at the cleaners and other goods had been taken out beforehand.

Mrs. Dorothy Lewis, in her evidence reluctantly told of hearing her brother-in-law say: "I'm going to have a damned good fire here some of these days." Evidence indicated that an effort had been made to get young DeVoin drunk when drinking was going on before the fire and efforts had been made after the fire to cover up. The whole story was plain.

Mr. Harvey's Plea

with Nestlé's Evaporated Milk for every milk and cream use

Every year sees an increasing number of women using Nestlé's Evaporated Milk. These women have learned to their own satisfaction that their threefold question as to when, how and for what Nestlé's Evaporated Milk may be used, can be answered with one safe, simple and economical rule—"For every milk and cream use". For Nestlé's Evaporated Milk can indeed be used wherever milk or cream is required, with amazingly satisfactory and economical results. Diluted with an equal quantity of water, this pure, concentrated, doubly rich cow's milk is used in the same way as the original milk. If extra "creaminess" is desired, the milk can be left in the rich form in which it comes from the tin.

not only an economy but an actual improvement. There is a finer texture to cakes and pie-crust and a smoother, rich creaminess to soups and sauces when Nestlé's Evaporated Milk is included. You'll even notice an added richness in the coloring.

If you want sour milk, for a special dessert or dressing, you simply add a tablespoon of vinegar to the diluted milk; for sour "cream", you do the same, leaving the milk undiluted.

And last, but certainly not least, this amazing milk will whip! Below we give instructions for whipping Nestlé's Evaporated Milk.

Whipping Nestlé's Evaporated Milk

The Nestlé's Evaporated Milk must be well chilled (below 50°F.) but should not be diluted. If it is scalded before it is chilled, it whips more readily and is somewhat stiffer.

TO SCALD Nestlé's Evaporated Milk, several cans may be prepared at once, by covering them with cold water, bringing to a boil and boiling for 5 minutes.

CHILLING Nestlé's Evaporated Milk is quickly brought about by pouring it into a freezing tray in your electric refrigerator and leaving for about five minutes. If not convenient to use a freezing tray, to chill the milk, pour it into a bowl surrounded by chipped ice and salt. Whip the milk rapidly. It will not "turn to butter" no matter how long or how many times it is whipped. Nestlé's Evaporated Milk, when whipped, increases in volume about three times.

"Nestlé's Milk has taught me the secret of inexpensive, successful cooking. I use Nestlé's Evaporated Milk in preference to any other brand, in all my recipes that call for milk. I certainly find it invaluable as a money and time saver."
