RELIEF FOR UNEMPLOYED

Condition of Local Single Men Being Placed Before Premier With Plea For Assistance

At a meeting of several hundred unemployed last night at the Canadian Labor Defence League Hall it was decided to send a telegram to Premier T. D. Pattullo drawing his attention to the serious situation which has arisen among some 175 local unemployed men who have been suffering for about a month now for want of substantial food after having been cut off relief following their refusal to proceed to the work camps in the south. A committee has been working on this matter for the past week and reported that it had obtained good results, the Prince Rupert Trades and Labor Council, Canadian Legion, Prince Rupert Retail Merchants' Association and other organizations having been interviewed. The unemployed realized that the new government could hardly be expected to get all the unemployed back at work for at least a year but urged that some immediate and more effective relief measures be invoked meantime.

A committee, of which Charles Chapman was spokesman, met Government Agent Norman A. Watt this afternoon with the demand that the men who had refused to go to the work camp be reinstated on relief.

ARMISTICE OBSERVED

Remembrance Day is Fittingly Observed at Stewart

STEWART, Nov. 16:—Remembrance Day was fittingly observed in Stewart, all activities being sponsored by the Stewart Branch, Canadian Legion. At 10 a.m. there was a short service in the Legion Hall conducted by the branch chaplain, O. N. Mansbridge and Rev. G. H. Moody. Following the service veterans paraded to the Cenotaph where many citizens also gathered and at 11 o'clock the two-minute silence was observed and wreaths were laid.

Throughout the day poppies were sold on the streets by wives and daughters of veterans, under the convenership of Mrs. S. G. Lawrence. Poppies were also supplied by the Stewart branch for sale at Hyder, B.C., Premier, Big Missouri mine and United Empire Gold and Silver Mines.

A large and very successful dance was held in the evening, James Morrice being chairman of the committee in charge.

FINANCING IMPROVED

Public Revenue of Britain Mounting—Balanced Budget and Tax Reductions Anticipated

LONDON, Nov. 16:—Revenue of the British government has been increasing recently on an average of $7,000,000 per week, it was revealed in the House of Commons yesterday.

It is predicted in authoritative quarters that it may be possible to at least nearly balance the next budget in addition to making some reductions in taxation.

SOCIALIZED EDUCATION

Rev. C. D. Clarke Speaker Before Prince Rupert Parent-Teachers' Association

There was a good attendance at the regular monthly meeting of the Prince Rupert Parent-Teachers' Association which was held last evening in the Borden Street School with Mrs. H. B. Eastman presiding.

The address of the evening was given by Rev. C. D. Clarke who spoke on the subject of "Socializing Education." Socializing education did not mean in the schools, declared the speaker. The schools should never be dispensers of propaganda of any kind. Education should serve and minister to the life and common welfare of the people. Ministering to life did not merely mean preparing the pupils to earn a living. If education had meant merely this, it was because people had demanded this objective—because they had believed that the chief aim of life should be to make a living. In the past people had thought too much along the lines of what education could give in dollars and cents.

Today people were living under constantly changing conditions. They thought it drastic when the working day was reduced to eight hours. Now they were told that, if they were to be absorbed into industrial employment, the working day must be still further shortened—perhaps even to four hours. Socialized education would help to solve this problem for it would prepare the future citizens to live life at its best, not only for the hours of labor but also for the whole day. It would produce intelligent and thinking citizens, trained for the work they were best adapted for and who would be capable of utilizing the free hours of the day in a way beneficial to themselves and of service to their fellowmen. If education were truly socialized it would be available for all citizens. No one capable of profiting by a higher education would be denied the right to attend High School or University. No parent would have to confess, as one did recently to the speaker, "It is not only a matter of paying fees, I couldn't send my children anyway for I am unable to provide them with clothes and books."

The time was surely coming, the speaker emphasized, when the way of education would be opened to everyone.

Furdamental Objectives

Socialized education had four fundamental objectives. First, it would provide special training for those useful occupations and vocations for which each pupil was best adapted. Secondly, it would liberate and train the mind of the individual. Pupils would not be forced to believe and think along certain lines but would be encouraged to question, weigh, and consider. Language and literature, mathematics, the sciences and the study of the evolution of the physical universe and of the forms of life would advance this second objective. For its third objective socialized education would have the imparting of social information to the end that students would be acquainted with the lives and customs of other peoples. Ignorance of other peoples led to isolation, prejudice and war. History, anthropology, politics, sociology, and ethics would form the core of the subjects which would further this objective. History would not be taught as propoganda, and would not have as its aim nationalism and the glorification of war. The historian would lay before the student not only the story of his own nation but of all nations and it would be laid before them as thinking intelligent people. They would know life as it was and life as it is. They would understand the problems, the culture, and the aspirations of other peoples and they would become better citizens of the world.

Governments lacked contact with the real life of the people. The war-mutilated soldiers were not present at the tables of the disarmament conferences; the destitute and workless were not present. In reality legislators and governments often had no real contact with the stern realities of the lives of the people. If they had, something worth while would be accomplished for peace and humanity.

Finally, socialized education would train the pupils to respond to the great social virtues of truth, beauty and goodness.

Such were the great objectives of a socialized education and these, placed before minds liberated from superstition, tradition, and group prejudice, would develop and grow from day to day in the lives of future citizens and would surely make the world a brighter and happier place to live in.

Program Enjoyed

Prior to Mr. Clarke's address there was an enjoyable musical program. Miss Betty Cameron, accompanied by Miss Audrey Parkin, sang two vocal solos and Miss Elizabeth Currie played two delightful selections on the steel guitar. On motion of Mrs. D. C. Stuart a hearty vote of thanks was enthusiastically passed to Mr. Clarke for his splendid address, and to Miss Cameron, Miss Parkin and Miss Currie for their music.

TASTY OAT-MEAL Cookies
...for the cookie jar

The cookie-jar is an essential part of every home where there are growing children, and when it holds cookies such as the oatmeal delicacies given below—made with Nestlé's Evaporated Milk—it becomes a popular spot indeed!

For Nestle's Evaporated Milk gives to cookies a splendid texture and smooth consistency—and the moisture which is retained with the help of this doubly rich milk assures freshness for a longer period of time. Richness, extra flavour, extra nourishment, splendid colouring—all these are embodied in cookies made with Nestlé's Evaporated Milk. Try it in the recipe given below—and watch the family gather round the cookie-jar!

Oatmeal Cookies

2 cups pastry flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ cup butter
1¼ cups brown sugar
½ cup Nestlé's Evaporated Milk
2 cups oatmeal
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ cup crisco
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup raisins, washed and dried

Sift flour, then measure. Resift with soda, baking powder and cinnamon. Cream the fat, add sugar and continue creaming until smooth and fluffy. Add beaten eggs, then the flour mixture and Nestlé's Evaporated Milk alternately, beginning and ending with flour. Add oatmeal, vanilla and raisins and stir just enough to distribute. Drop from a spoon onto an oiled baking sheet. Bake in a hot oven (400°F.) about 15 minutes. Yield: 54 cookies.
