THE LEADER SPEAKS

T. D. Pattullo, leader of the Liberal party in British Columbia, made clear his position last night on a number of matters. He came out strongly for the completion of the highway between Prince Rupert and Terrace, for the reconditioning of the present highway on Graham Island on the Queen Charlottes, for putting the unemployed to work for real wages, for a refunding scheme by which interest rates will be lowered, and for better treatment for the municipalities and schools. Many other matters were dealt with but these would have a strong appeal locally.

A POWER IN THE LAND

If T. D. Pattullo is given a good majority in the next legislature, there is no doubt that he will be a power in the land. People will know who is premier and what he stands for. Legislation in the interests of the masses with a fair deal for all will undoubtedly be passed, financial conditions will be improved and the unemployed will be given work. That will make the whole province prosperous.

PENNANT IS NOW CINCH

NEW YORK, Sept. 20: (CP)—With a lead of eight full games which cannot be overcome no matter how remaining games may go, the New York Giants yesterday had clinched the National League pennant, Pittsburgh Pirates, Chicago Cubs and St. Louis Cardinals are still waging a merry battle for second place with Boston Braves also still in the running for the runner-up position. It is the thirteenth time the Giants have won the pennant which is a major league record.

Rochester Goes One Up Tuesday In Ball Play-off

ROCHESTER, Sept. 20: (CP)—By defeating Buffalo by a score of 6 to 3 here yesterday, Rochester took a two game to one advantage in the play-off series for the International League baseball championship.

Contract King Trains Before Bridge Tourney

NEW YORK, Sept. 19: (CP)—Ely Culbertson goes into training before a bridge tournament. The game is just as strenuous as football, he says.

Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson train by playing with their children. "They ask so many questions," the contract king declared. "They dominate your personality completely. Then you are in fine shape for the gruelling three days of a tournament."

For those who have no children, Culbertson prescribed a week of going to the movies, preferably to see slap-stick comedies, or a week of detective story reading. "Bridge playing, after all, is like solving murder mysteries," he explained. "You have the mysteries of the best bid and the best play."

Baseball Team Home From Smithers Trip

The local senior league all-star baseball team, which went to Smithers for a series of two games with the pick of the Bulkley Valley League, returned home on last evening's train. The team shared honors with the interior boys in the series, losing the first game 3 to nil and winning the second 10 to 4. The team, which was under the management of Jack Campbell, reports having been given a splendid reception in the interior town.

Pattullo Tells Large Audience How Party Would Meet Problems

that party government could not be done away with. There were now and there would always be two parties—the "ins" and the "outs." The Liberal leader stated that his party now had 45 candidates in the field for the 47 seats in the legislature. The candidates of the party were of excellent calibre. Out of the 45 candidates, 19 might be said to belong to the "old guard" while the demand for new blood had been met by putting 24 new candidates in the field. The party was ready to take over tomorrow and administer the affairs of the province efficiently for the benefit of the people.

The financial structure of the province would have to be overhauled, declared Mr. Pattullo. The province could not continue to go on paying interest rates of seven and eight percent.

Education was another important problem which was being felt locally through the raising of the age for children entering school and the imposition of fees on children over 16 years of age. The Liberal party was pledged to go thoroughly into the whole question of education.

Provincial - municipal financial relations would also be thoroughly reviewed by the Liberals if returned to power so that the municipalities might be permitted to look after their interests and survive. The Tolmie government had placed additional burdens on the municipalities and, at the same time, had withdrawn some of their sources of revenue.

In promising the attention of the Liberal party to a policy of market extension, Mr. Pattullo urged the importance of co-operating with the United States with a view, if possible, to having timber restored to the free list and the duty on fish removed. He would also collaborate with the federal and other provincial governments.

Unemployment
Turning to unemployment, Mr. Pattullo felt that the present dole system was breaking down the morale of the men. Children were being charged to go to school on the one hand while, on the other, no provision was being made for their employment. The Liberal party proposed to use the national credit to initiate public works. "If the national credit could be used to build the great railway systems and to fight the war, why cannot it be used for a war on poverty?" asked the Liberal leader.

A voice: "The banks won't let you have it."

Mr. Pattullo: "The banks will let it do it because they won't have the say whether they will let us or not." (Applause.)

Here Mr. Pattullo prophesied that the federal government would soon be lending money to the provinces without interest at all to assist them in financing public works.

The present system of production and distribution of wealth, declared Mr. Pattullo, was wrong. It was the Liberal policy to do what it could to change it and also to use its influence in the matter. It was essential that purchasing power should be restored to the hands of the people. Without this there could be no return of prosperity.

Under the public works policy which the Liberal party planned to inaugurate, it might be possible for Prince Rupert to have its road in three or four years, Mr. Pattullo suggested. The speaker reiterated his former belief that the route should have been via the canneries and thus bring an easily accessible revenue to Prince Rupert.

Conditions for road-building today were different than ten years ago. Inclusion of the road under a national program then would have seemed ridiculous. Even at that he had hoped to spend $200,000 or $300,000 a year and put it through in ten years or so.

"That road was started under me and it is going to be finished under me," declared Mr. Pattullo after some questions had been asked on the subject.

Economic Council
Mr. Pattullo described the Liberal plan to establish an economic council, the membership of which should consist of representatives of the various avenues of endeavor such as health, agriculture, labor and industries, for the purpose of studying industrial and social effort in the province and suggesting means to the government of correlating these efforts. Such a committee would familiarize itself with intra, inter-provincial and foreign trade and also study such problems as production and consumption, marketing of products, number of hours of work per day and days per week and the standard of wages and commodity prices.

The Liberal leader expressed his appreciation of the electorate of Prince Rupert having supported him so consistently through the past years. The people here had been faithful to him and he believed they could expect he would be faithful to their interests. As far as the Liberal party in the province as a whole was concerned, he was confident of a clear-cut majority. In view of this, he believed that the people here would be justified in returning him to office and he asked that a "solid north" be sent with him.

Other Speakers
The meeting was presided over by G. W. Nickerson. Major S. F. M. Moodie of Victoria, Liberal organizer for the province, and Olof Hanson, M.P. for Skeena, were also heard briefly.

Major Moodie spoke of the political situation in the province. The Independents he described as being really Conservatives now attempting to get into office again by the back door in view of the realization that the Tolmie government had been such a failure and the "non-partisan" movement of Mr. Bowser's such an "absolute flop."

While some of the aims of the C. F. E. were to be approved of and were actually contained in the Liberal platform, some of the methods of this party were "entirely undemocratic," Major Moodie condemned the inner group of nine in while so much power was vested. No community could even choose a candidate unless he were approved by this inner circle.

"I don't believe there will be a handful of C. F. E.'s elected or that the people of this province are going to be hoodwinked by former Conservatives posing as Independents," declared Major Moodie. "I predict that the Liberals will have an overwhelming majority."

The Liberal party, said Major Moodie, was happy in its leadership and had a splendid slate of candidates and a real program which had been evolved in an open and democratic manner last fall at the largest political convention ever held in the province.

Hope Hanson thought the only hope for British Columbia lay in putting in practical men with experience under outstanding and courageous leadership such as that of Mr. Pattullo.

Mr. Nickerson, who reminded the audience that he had opposed the Liberal party on occasion in the past, urged that it would be advisable for Prince Rupert to have a friend in the captain of the ship after November 2. Need of government support in municipal finances particularly would be essential if the city were to survive.
