MAJOR DOUGLAS

Major Douglas, the apostle of a new school of economics, built with the bases in water to has been asked to address the Legislatures of British Co-protect them. The wood used was lumbia and Alberta He has already laid his scheme, known ligna vitae, so hard that an axe as "Douglas Social Credits," before the people and ruling bodies of Australia and has also done the same for the British House of Commons. .

These were Adam Smith, Karl Marx and Major or water, having both gills and Douglas. Douglas built on the theories of the other two and lungs. When out of the water they produced a thoroughly workable scheme.

The Douglas scheme is decidedly revolutionary in char-trees. acter. It provides for the shelving of many old ideas. So new and hopeful is it that time must be taken to think it so much so that the speaker said over before adopting or rejecting it. Many prominent people in Britain are actively urging it and Australia is said to have taken it up with great enthusiasm. Something like a dozen books have been written about it, but very few club, was in the chair. people in Prince Rupert have even heard about it.

Today the mind of the people is receptive to new ideas. The avidity with which many turned to the C. C. F. is an indication that they realize something radical must be INDICTMENT done. Others have turned to some form of fascism as the cure but few are satisfied that any of the much touted new schemes would be a great improvement on the old. The people are still searching and if Major Douglas has a Grand Jury Puts Well Known Wall scheme that will bring relief to a troubled world, it will not be difficult to persuade them to accept it. At any rate it will be interesting to hear about it and to compare it with the other schemes for economic salvation. Half a million people in Australia are said to be fully persuaded that he is the man of the hour and that his scheme will be the indicted yesterday by a Grand Jury one that will save the world from chaos.

MAY BE ELECTION SOON

It is possible that a federal election will take place sooner than we think. Eastern journals speak of it as a probability and a dispatch from Ottawa vesterday mentioned the probability that the rejection of the waterways scheme by
