HEALTH CENTRE

Medical Association and Hospital
Board Co-operating—Laboratory
Technician Invited

The Prince Rupert Medical Association and the board of directors of the Prince Rupert General Hospital are co-operating in a move looking towards the establishment at Prince Rupert of a public health centre. It was revealed last night at the regular monthly meeting of the hospital board.

George Darling, for years a technician at Tranquille Sanitarium, who has attained considerable prominence in various forms of medical laboratory test work, is in communication with the Medical Association with a view to the possibility of locating here if conditions appear to be favorable. The hospital board has decided to offer him the use of the local laboratory and equipment and also the assistance of the secretary in connection with the imposing and collection of fees for services rendered. Mr. Darling's coming, it is felt, would make a valuable extension in local hospital functions and, eventually, might lead to the government giving financial assistance by establishing a public health centre which would fill a long-felt need.

Dr. W. T. Kergin, delegate of the Prince Rupert Medical Association, and other members of the board expressed themselves as being much in favor of the idea.

W. P. Armour, head of the Armour Salvage Co., and Hubert Ward, underwriters' representative, on board, left this morning for the entrance of Union Pass at the lower end of Grenville Channel where the power tug Salvage Princess ran ashore late Thursday night while enroute to Union Pass to pick up a tow of logs for delivery to the McAfee & Sunbury box factory at Georgetown.

The Salvage Princess, which went up at just about high water, was still fast ashore this morning but it was hoped that, with the two other boats alongside, it might be possible to refloat her soon. Meantime, so far as is known, she is not seriously damaged and is in no immediate danger.
