elt sure he would make good in his new work

Max Heilbroner expressed the happy knack of making himself a good fellow wherever he went. He was well adapted to the work he would be called upon to do and he wished him and his wife every James Bacon said they were all sorry to see Mr. Glassey go. Unfortunately for Prince Rupert most of the people went away. With all the opportunities there were in the city he did not know why this was.

He wished Bert every success. W. M. Brown said he was glad to see Mr. Glassey better himself It was a pasition of trust which he felt he would fill well.

M. P. McCaffery said he was glad to add his congratulations to the departing guest. He had attended a number of similar events and listened to the speeches and he sometimes wondered if there would be anyone left to give him a sendoff when his turn came. someone had told him that when he left they would give him a wake, Mr. Glassey had that spirit co-operation and friendship which it was hard to break away from. He knew that the spirit of goodfellowship which he had dis-

In making the presentation Mr. Nickerson said the presence of so many there that evening was an indication of the good will his fellow citizens had for him. He hoped the present would be useful and that he would return often to see his old friends.

Mr. Glassey in responding thanked the donors most heartily. He had tried to treat everyone here fairly and he felt that he could make good in Atlin, even if at first it was a little difficult. He would always remember his friends in the south and he thank God he was going north.

Those present were: George Arnold, E. Anderson, T. Brown, W. M. Blackstock, A. Brooksbank William Brown, J. Bacon, W. Coates, W. Cruickshank, J. Sandow, James Ciccone: W. Drake. Capt. Elfert, .
