SCHOOLS RE-OPEN

Holidays Over, Pupils Are Back at Studies Again—Changes in Teaching Staffs

City schools reopened yesterday following the long summer vacation. Yesterday was devoted to the registration of pupils, including a large number of beginners in the public schools, and today the young students are getting down to routine work.

No less than 107 beginners were admitted yesterday, 68 at Booth Memorial School and 39 at Borden Street with more still coming. Enrollment at Booth School on opening day totalled 474. The school enrollment is much heavier than last year.

The re-opening of the schools sees few changes in the staffs except in the case of King Edward High School where three new teachers—Miss Dorothy Bruce of Victoria, Gordon Allan of Vancouver and Roth Gordon of this city—have taken up appointments.

Miss Jessie D. Moffatt has taken over duty as receiving-class teacher at Borden Street School in succession to Miss Alice Pillsbury, who is on a year's leave of absence. Miss Margaret McLean having taken charge of Seal Cove School in place of Miss Moffatt.

RECEPTION DISCUSSED

this report, the department does not wish to ask the power company to carry out any extensive work on the transmission line until there is some assurance that definite improvement in radio reception would result therefrom. Meantime, the power company has already spent some $2000 or $3000 on the transmission line in such work as painting insulators, etc. with a view to eliminating some of the disturbance. The company is also giving every co-operation possible to the radio inspectors in their testing of the line.

This among other information came out last night at a meeting in the City Hall of a large number of local radio owners with Mr. Irvine when the whole matter of local radio reception was thoroughly canvassed, a number of interesting suggestions with a view to betterments being made. The meeting passed a resolution that a strongly worded communication be sent to the department setting out the difficulties besetting local radio set owners in the matter of reception, and urging that no time be lost in implementing any recommendations that may be submitted by Mr. Irvine with a view to improving reception.

The meeting was presided over by F. W. Wesch who, after making brief introductory remarks, called upon Mr. Irvine. The latter told of tests that were being made of the power line. Other cities, he said, had just as noisy transmission lines. However, these cities were closer to the broadcasting stations and the signal strength was greater so the effect of the transmission line noise was not so serious. It was noted that on foggy nights here the transmission line noise was to a large extent eliminated.

Mr. Irvine agreed that, if the secondary wires were removed from the transmission line, it would probably help a great many receiving sets.

"Squealers" Troublesome

Horace Duhamel thought that "squealers" were possibly a source of as much trouble as the transmission line. He thought there should be a full time radio inspector here whose duty it would be to collect licences, test receivers for interference and be clothed with authority to outlaw "squealers."

Many of those in the meeting held the view that local owners of radio sets should refuse to pay their licences until such time as the department gave them some return or service in the way of removing interference.

Suggestions were made that the Canadian stations should step up their power so that they might be received more satisfactorily here. The statement was made that CRCV of Vancouver was about to increase its power from 500 to 5000 watts. W. R. Love offered the suggestion that Kamloops would be an advantageous point for a central broadcasting station for British Columbia to be located. Mr. Wesch stated that two Vancouver parties had made application for licences to establish a radio broadcasting station in Prince Rupert.

There was considerable general discussion at the meeting which lasted for over an hour.
