Three Queen Charlotte Camps to Double Crews Giving 600 Men Work

More Logs Produced This Season Than at Any Time Since War and Output in 1935 to be Doubled—New Camps Opened by Borgan and Kelley

More logs have been produced on the Queen Charlotte Islands this year than in any season since the war and next year it is expected the output will be twice as large as this, making 1935 the banner year in the history of the industry on the Islands, it was stated this morning by John R. Morgan, well known Island logging operator, who is here on his way to Vancouver on business. He arrived last night from the Islands on the Prince Charles and will go south on the Princess Adelaide tonight.

More logs were taken off the Islands this year than on the entire mainland between Queen Charlotte Sound and Alaska. It is said by Mr. Morgan. Increased demand of the Powell River and Ocean Falls paper mills, both of which are now producing up to the last pound of their capacity, is responsible for the expanding logging activity on the Islands, said Mr. Morgan. Mr. Morgan announced that, having cleaned up the timber available there, he would be closing the camp at Crescent Inlet, near Lockeport, on October 15 and would move to a new location at Sedgewick Bay near Lyell Island, about twenty miles south of Crescent Inlet. Already some of the camp equipment is being moved. There will be no more interruption in log production than is necessary in connection with the moving. The crew of the Morgan camp will be doubled next year to a strength of about 200 men.

The Allison Logging Co., operating at Cumshewa Inlet, and the T. A. Kelley Logging Co., which has been running a camp at Atli Inlet, will also be doubling their crews next year. The Allison company is expected to expand operations at the present site while the Kelley company has already opened a new camp at Sewell Inlet, about twenty miles north of Atli. The three Island camps will give employment to some six hundred men next year, it is expected.

Big Bears Bother Engineers Working Logging Railway

SKIDEGATE, Sept. 28:—Engineers surveying the new logging railway for the A. P. Allison Logging Co. at Cumshewa Inlet have been having a great deal of trouble with bears. On one occasion a bear is blamed with having carried off a transit valued at $350. At another time a large pot of beans left outside a tent was removed, pot and all. Another bear took charge of one of the camp buildings and defiled the men to enter it, the animal being finally shot by Harvey Bowden.

This is the first time that spot market prices have touched the level at which speculative and hoarded stocks were nationalized by the United States Treasury and evidently reflects further gains in foreign markets.

The present spot market for silver is entirely for foreign metal. For industrial use domestically-produced metal still commands a special price of 64½c per ounce at the Treasury.
