First vice-president, W. M. Brown. Second vice-president, Hugh Killin.

Executive—S. A. Bird, A. Parlow, D. C. Schubert, J. McGresh, W. Wilson and H. Smith.

In connection with Remembrance Day it was planned to have the regular church parade in the forenoon of November 11 and the Cenotaph service in the afternoon of the same day. The Armistice banquet will be held on the Monday evening in the club rooms. Permission will be asked to hold the Poppy Day on November 10, the Women's Auxiliary being in charge of the arrangements.

In the course of the evening a presentation was made to William Brass in recognition of his valuable assistance in the drawing up of the plans of the new building and his advice and supervision.

Appreciation was freely expressed of the splendid work of the Women's Auxiliary, their help to needy families and assistance to the disabled. They were an invaluable asset to the branch.

The matter of the formation of a junior service club is under consideration, membership being for the male dependents of ex-service men and women qualified to enrol in the Canadian Legion. A branch has already been established in Stewart and is doing splendid work among the young men there.

In preparation for the general meeting, an executive meeting of the Legion was held on Monday evening.
