KING'S BODY GOING HOME

Jugo-Slavia Prepares to Pay Final Tribute to Memory of Monarch, Victim of Assassin's Fire
State Funeral
National Mourning For Sovereign of Greatest South Slav Kingdom In History

PARIS, October 11 (Canadian Press)—Europe was still calm and perplexed last night after more than twenty-four hours had elapsed following the double assassination at Marseilles of King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia and Foreign Minister Louis Barthou of France. In a number of European capitals search was being made for a supposed band of international terrorists who, it was suggested, might have been responsible for the plot to kill King Alexander and who might have other activities of a similar kind in mind. Others believed that the slaying of King Alexander was the outcome of internal feelings in Jugo-Slavia of which country the dead assassin was a native. There were no political disorders anywhere in Jugo-Slavia yesterday, it was stated.

Body Going Home
BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Oct. 11: (AP)—Jugo-Slavia was preparing today to pay final honor to her sovereign, Alexander I, victim of a countryman-assassin's bullet fire in Marseilles, France, on Tuesday. The body of the monarch, aboard a Jugo-Slavian destroyer, is due to arrive tomorrow from France, the boat being the same on which he left. A state funeral will be held and the entire country is in national mourning. The shock at the tragic death of the king has, for the time being at least, overshadowed the internal strife which has long characterized this troublous Balkan nation. Queen Marie left Marseilles yesterday for Paris to meet her son, King-Designate Peter, on his arrival from England, where he had been attending Eaton College, and will accompany him home to Belgrade. The eleven year old King was accompanied from London to Paris by his grandmother, the Dowager Queen Marie of Roumania.
