NEW UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF DEAL IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

All Those Needing Aid From Public Funds to Re-Register in August

No One to be Allowed to Suffer For Want of Necessities Providing They Are Genuinely in Need—Thousands of Names Expected to be Struck Off

VICTORIA, May 30: (CP)—Following receipt of numerous complaints from all parts of the province that unemployment relief as it is administered at present has become a "racket," Premier T. D. Pattullo announced yesterday that the government has decided that relief as now distributed in British Columbia will terminate on August 1 when a complete re-registration will become effective.

The Premier took pains to point out that no one in the province will be allowed to suffer for want of the necessities of life. There is no doubt, he said, that the present position of affairs is breaking down the morale of the people.

So far as possible within the resources of the province, Mr. Pattullo stated, necessary works will be carried out and it is understood also that Ottawa will have a program of its own.

It was reiterated that those absolutely in want and requiring assistance will have to re-register after August 1 under rules and regulations to be formulated and which will be administered by the minister of labor. The government will then decide who are to be carried on relief.

It is expected that, as a result of the change, thousands of persons will be taken off the relief lists with a heavy saving to the country.

TRIBUTE IS PAID

Large Gathering of Citizens Assembles to Farewell Col. McMordie on Leaving City

Presentation Made

Prominent Pioneer Contractor, Business Man, Military Officer And Ex-Mayor Honored

Over one hundred citizens of Prince Rupert assembled last night in the Commodore Cafe to pay farewell tribute to Lieut. Col. S. P. McMordie D. S. O., prominent pioneer contractor and business man, distinguished ex-army officer and former mayor, alderman and police magistrate, on the eve of his departure for Victoria to which city he has been transferred in the service of the Famous Players Canadian Corporation. The affair took the form of a complimentary banquet under the auspices of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce with the president, John Dybhavn, in the chair. A feature of the proceedings was the presentation to Col. McMordie of a handsome club bag as a token of the community's appreciation, esteem and best wishes. The farewell address to Col. McMordie was made by Ex-Mayor Cyril H. Orme while City Commissioner W. J. Alder also spoke briefly. Col. McMordie, moved by the honor which was being done him, replied suitably.

Ex-Mayor Orme
 In his address, Ex-Mayor Orme recounted the prominent place Col. McMordie had taken in the affairs of Prince Rupert since he had first come here over a quarter of a century ago, also the service he had rendered the community. Before the war he had been a prominent builder, contractor and investor. Overseas during the war his record of service had been one of everlasting credit not only to Prince Rupert but to the whole province of British Columbia. After coming home from Europe, he had again given of his talents as police magistrate, alderman, mayor and in other capacities. A good sportsman and a hard fighter, Col. McMordie was one, Mr. Orme declared, whom he was proud indeed to number among his friends. The departure from Prince Rupert not only of Col. McMordie but of Mrs. McMordie would be a distinct loss to this city.

MEDICINE DISCUSSED

Dr. R. G. Large Interesting Speaker At Luncheon of Gyro Club Yesterday

Without medicine modern civilization could not exist and the discoveries of physical science would be utterly impossible of use or application," declared Dr. R. G. Large in addressing the Prince Rupert Gyro Club yesterday on the subject of "Medicine and Civilization." Very few people realized, the speaker declared, the importance of the contribution medicine had made in the development of things, this being probably due to the fact that its contributions had been of a negative character. People were too apt to judge medicine by the problems it has yet to solve, giving little thought to what had already been done. Medicine had made its chief contribution in the abolition of harmful influences. In the memory of only a very few living today had the world experienced an epidemic of plague, cholera or yellow fever. If present medical knowledge were wiped out, civilization would go back five hundred years if, indeed, it were able to survive at all. Pestilences would return, epidemics would sweep across the country and, within a decade, the greater part of the population would be wiped out. The remainder of the population would be sickly and generally short-lived. Large sections of the world now prosperous would become uninhabitable. With drinking water no longer purified, sewage dumped in the streets, vaccination discontinued and quarantine abolished, diseases long forgotten would immediately return, leprosy would spread, surgery would be of the roughest and most brutal, aseptic obstetrics would give place to the mediaeval midwife with all her ignorance and filth resulting in the dread puerperal fever and dentistry would be confined to brutal extractions without anaesthesia.

In the course of his address Dr. Large recounted in an interesting and, at times, amusing manner, some of the highlights of medical practice as it was known in an earlier day. In many cases strange practices were hinged with religious ceremonies and unlovely rites.

Greeks Led Way
 The greatest advances in medicine in early times were made by the Greeks, the speaker said. Organized medicine there was in the hands of the priests of Aesculapius whose temples of healing were located about the countryside. Greek medicine later migrated to Rome.
