The Prince Rupert Tennis Club's men's singles final was concluded last evening with Otto Young winning by three sets to one. Continuing from where play had stopped on Tuesday evening with Young two sets up, play was steady rather than brilliant with Mitchell winning the third set. The fourth set began with Young winning two games but Mitchell caught up at four all. On his own serve in the fifth set Mitchell missed an easy kill after some brilliant volleying and Young, went on to win the game and then

MORE SUGGESTIONS ARE MADE

This morning we received more suggestions as to Prince Rupert's needs in response to the advertisement asking for them. One was that the citizens of Prince Rupert take a pride in telling the world that their city is the best place in which to live and that they work for the advancement of the city and citizens.

This is an excellent suggestion. It is one that, if followed out, would prove of great advantage to the place and the people generally. We are here because it is the best place in the world for us. If it were not, we should be elsewhere. We exercise our right of protest against the weather, against those who administer public affairs, against the people and the political system and the rest of the world, especially any who happen to be more successful than ourselves. We have inherited this right to grumble from our British ancestors. Something like fifty million people live in Great Britain because it is the best place in the world for them and they enjoy grumbling at their hard lot. They point to the delights of other climates but they do not go there to enjoy them except for a holiday.

So Prince Rupert, with its population of something over six thousand, is becoming more stable because most of the people who live here are here to stay. They have adopted the city as their home. Many of them own their places and are improving them. The difficulty is that we sometimes magnify the disagreeable things and minimize the pleasant things of life and forget that every place has its unpleasant features. What we need to do is to meet in the best possible way the conditions that exist so that they will not injure or annoy us.

And above all let us follow out the suggestion and present to strangers the best features of our city and let us work individually and collectively to build a real city that will serve the whole north country, one that tourists and others will like to visit.

OTHER SUGGESTIONS

Other suggestions are that a mill at Port Edward be established to handle ores from the mines of northern and central British Columbia and that Prince Rupert become a naval base and a free port. These matters presumably would call for governmental action but it is all right to call attention to them and to interest the authorities in them.
