

ON INSPECTION TRIP UP LINE

Gen. Supt. Mehan with Right-of-Way Agents and Party Left on Special This A.M. Return Tonight.

A special train pulled out early this morning with General Superintendent Mehan and party on an inspection trip up line.

Mr. Mehan was accompanied by G. H. Pope, right-of-way agent, and his assistant, W. H. Dempster, also Messrs. Oglivie and Lamonde. Mr. G. McNichol also went out with the party which will return with the special train tonight.

BRIGHTER CITY HALL

Miss Unwin Stenographer there Triumphantly Rears Nasturtiums.

This morning the City Hall—in the little corner reserved for Miss Unwin the stenographer—is brightened by a window show of radiant nasturtiums. The pretty blooms were reared by Miss Unwin herself and survived quite a host of vicissitudes. Rats nibbled the seedlings—frost nipped them, small boys meddled with them but Miss Unwin nobly defended them and is today rewarded by their refreshing display of color. Two varieties, dwarf and climbing nasturtiums, are growing together in the window.

Cetrian's Indian Crowd

The S.S. Cetriana came in last night with a full cargo of general freight for Prince Rupert and way points. The Cetriana leaves today via the west coast to pick up a party of 460 Indians at Rivers Inlet Cannery and take them to their own domain.

NEW INDUSTRY FOR THE CITY

Austin Brown Starting a Harness and Saddlery Manufactory on Second Avenue.

A new and important business—that of manufacturing harness and saddlery—is to be started in the city this week by Mr. Austin Brown, who is an experienced harness maker by trade. In his workshop on Second avenue between Tenth and Eleventh streets a complete outfit of harness making machinery is being installed, enabling him to fill all kinds of special orders. He will have a complete stock of finished goods and will do all manner of repairs.

There is a good field here in the city to supply the needs of team owners and a still bigger field in manufacturing harness and saddles for the up-river country. Mr. Brown should be able to build up a good business here at his trade.

FOUND GUILTY OF STEALING

Man Named Weaver Will be Sentenced, Perhaps Heavily, This Afternoon. Took a Kit Bag from the Grand.

Today a man named Thomas Weaver came up for sentence at two p.m. before Magistrate McMullin who this morning found him guilty on his own confession of having taken and sold a kit bag from a guest at the Grand Hotel. Weaver was arrested yesterday afternoon by Chief Vickers on information furnished by the hotel proprietor. The bag had been sold to a second hand goods dealer, and at first accused tried to shift the blame for the theft on to another man. In court today, however, he thought better of it and admitted guilt. His sentence may be a heavy one. City Solicitor Peters who took care of the case desired the Magistrate to impress on second hand dealers in the city the advisability of notifying the police very quickly when any ridiculously cheap bag-gains in the way of portable goods are offered them under circumstances in any way at all suspicious.
