Wednesday night the local Eagles' Lodge held its annual Christmas Tree entertainment. Many novel features were introduced and there were about one hundred kiddies in attendance. Following a visit from Santa Claus, who distributed gifts from the Christmas tree to all the youngsters present, the children and their parents sat down to a delicious supper which had been prepared by Mrs. Frank Ellison, Mrs. Frank Fitzgerald, Mrs. William Robb and Mrs. Fred Monkley. Mob Breaks Loose in Tennessee City in Attempt to Get Negro Who Assaulted Girl

SHELBYVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 21: (CP)—Three men were killed and seven injured and the $150,000 court house here was destroyed by fire when a mob ran riot in an attempt to seize a negro charged with attacking a young white girl. The militia was called out and opened fire on the mob in the attempt to save the building after the negro had been secretly removed. Later the mob destroyed four trucks which had been used to carry troops to the city.

Members of Cast And Orchestra At Play Entertained

Due to inclement weather, counter attractions and other circumstances, there was not a large crowd in attendance Wednesday night at the third presentation by the Prince Rupert Players' Guild at the St. Andrew's Anglican Cathedral Hall of the mystery drama "The Voice of the Swamp." The entertainment, however, went off without a hitch and was greatly enjoyed by all. Following the play, members of the cast and orchestra were entertained at the H. Rooms. A. J. Squire, president of the H. Rooms, expressed appreciation of the effort and S. P. Woodside, director of the play, replied.

DETAILS OF COLLISION

broke. The steamer threupon ran into the stern of the cannery boat, putting right into it. There were nine men asleep on board at the time. They were immediately roused and taken off by a lifeboat from the Cardena which then pushed the sinking tender ahead of her into a nearby bay where she sank about forty minutes later. The P. W.'s masts are showing and she is salvageable.

After beaching the P. W., the Cardena returned to the Namu dock where she discharged her cargo and made repairs to the telegraph wire before proceeding on her northward voyage.

In some ways, the accident might be considered to have occurred in a fortunate manner. Had the P. W. been struck amidships, the steamer would probably have gone right through her and all on board might have been lost. Had she been struck in the bow, the results might also have been much more serious. The sleeping men were all forward.
