Rigging of Halibut Gear Now General Occupation—Many Halibut Livers Landed During 1933—Fishing and Canning Outlook Promising

Although the opening of 1934 fishing operations is still six weeks or so removed, rigging of gear is now becoming a general occupation at all places along the Prince Rupert waterfront where fishermen are wont to foregather. Like at the ladies' knitting meetings, it is at the gear-rigging bees where all the gossip of the day may be heard, to say nothing of the observations and opinions in regard to same. One thing that is noticeable is the general feeling of optimism in regard to the outlook for the 1934 season. All concerned seem to be agreed that a bigger and better season is in store and one that, for all, will be a good deal more prosperous than for several years past and there appear to be good and logical grounds for sanguine expectations.

Over 222,000 pounds of halibut livers were marketed by Canadian fishermen last year and were used by pharmaceutical firms in the production of halibut liver oil. Practically all these livers were handled from Prince Rupert. Until a very few years ago halibut livers were of practically no commercial value but Canada's 1932 output was worth about $29,600.

The local halibut boat and troller R. W. Capt. Anaker Wick, left yesterday morning for Lewis Island where she will undergo a program of caulking and hull repairs at the hands of E. Rosang. The R. W. will probably be away for the next two or three weeks.

Having arrived in port Thursday night with the Taplow II Bert Flewin and George Brown of Port Simpson were business visitors in town yesterday. They left yesterday on their return to Simpson.

Extremely high tides in the harbor during the past week or so have been accentuated on some occasions by the heavy winds with the result that some of the local docks have been almost awash. Some more or less minor damage was reported.

The Indian Department's cruiser Naskeena made a run on Wednesday of this week to Metlakatla, having on board Indian Agent W. E. Collison and Dominion Constable A. J. Watkinson whose business was in connection with the conducting of nominations for the village council for 1934. They will make another trip to Metlakatla next Wednesday to conduct the election.

A bearer of optimistic tidings for the fishing industry of this district was John Dybhavn, president of the Royal Fish Co. and Massett Cannery, who returned to Prince Rupert on Wednesday after a trip to Eastern Canada and the United States during which he attended the annual meeting of the Biological Board of Canada as well as visiting New York, Montreal and other centres on company business. Mr. Dybhavn reported that the outlook both for halibut fishing and salmon canning industries on the British Columbia coast this year was very encouraging. It was apparent, he said, that, by the time fresh halibut gets on the market following the opening of the fishing season on March 1, frozen stocks will have been practically all cleaned up. It was also expected that the old pack of all varieties would be pretty well out of the way before this year's salmon canning season commenced. Mr. Dybhavn found that, during his absence, he had been honored by being elected to the presidency of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce in succession to another prominent personage on the Prince Rupert waterfront in T. H. Johnson, general manager of the Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Co.

C. P. R. steamer Princess Adelaide, Capt. S. K. Gray, arrived in port at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon from the south and sailed at 10 p.m. on her return to Vancouver and waypoints, the first of three passenger liners to sail from here within twelve hours for the south. The Venture, Capt. Ernest George-son, in last night from 7:15 to midnight in place of the steamer Cardena, and Princess Norah, Capt. William Palmer, in this morning from 9 o'clock to 10, southbound from Skagway to Vancouver, being the other two.

Local short wave radio listeners last Sunday were interested to hear Capt. W. L. Dass, well known coast mariner, speaking over the radio from Alert Bay. Capt. Dass was talking to the Queen Charlotte Islands from the T. A. Kelley Logging Co.'s service boat Nora Jane which has been making a trip from Vancouver with equipment for the company's big camp at Athol on the Islands which is resuming operations.

Capt. Edward Mabbs was in command of the steamer Prince John which was in port this week, leaving last night on her return to Vancouver via the Queen Charlotte Islands. Capt. Mabbs is reported to have received a hearty welcome from many old friends on the Queen Charlotte Islands. It was his first trip in command of the Prince John for a couple of years or so.
