THOSE OF DREADED ZAWEAKSH KNOWN TO NATIVES OF OLD?

Experience of W. R. Sampson of Port Simpson Last Spring May Shed Light on Mystery

Are the remains of the huge sea monster now at the Prince Rupert Fisheries Experimental Station in process of preservation after having been discovered at Henry Island a few days ago those of ZAWEAKSH, "monster of the sea," which was known and feared by Indians of an early day on the north coast of British Columbia? Are

It was the son, Robert, who first sighted the monster as it appeared to be approaching almost straight for their boat. However, it passed by at distance of some twenty or profile views were obtainable. Moving along the surface of the water at a goodly speed, the head was reared high out of the water at the end of a long neck.
