Two Comedies Are Offered

"Jimmy and Sally" and "Meet the Baron" on Double Bill at Capitol Theatre

James Dunn and a new leading lady in the person of Claire Trevor are the stars of "Jimmy and Sally," a highly diverting and entertaining comedy romance with music, which is one of two feature presentations on the screen of the Capitol Theatre here this mid-week. Skilful, tuneful and delightful, the story is said to be ideally suited for Dunn and Miss Trevor, both of whom give fine performances. The story describes the loves and sorrows of a typical pair of modern young love birds. It delves deeply into their lives and touches gently and sympathetically on their numerous misunderstandings. After many vicissitudes, the picture eventually comes to a happy ending.

Jack Pearl, famous "Baron Munchausen" of the radio, Jimmy Durante and Zasu Pitts are the laugh-making trio heading the cast of "Meet the Baron," the other end of the double bill. It is an hilarious comedy with music dealing with the sanguinary adventures of "The Baron" and Durante in a girls' college. Miss Pitts is the head chambermaid and she and "The Baron" fall in love while Jimmy proceeds to vamp the college dean played by Edna May Oliver. Ted Healy and his stooges are in charge of the campus. Beautiful singing and dancing chorines appear as college girls. Amid the comedy is a thread of love romance.

Charles F. B. Faulkner, assistant district engineer for the federal department of public works from New Westminster, expects to sail by the Prince George tomorrow night on his return south. He has been here for the past few days inspecting progress on the construction of a new float at Oona River, the Pacific Engineers having the contract for the work.
