UNIQUE IN FRIENDSHIP

Late Lord Halifax Was Intimate With Cardinal Mercier and King Edward

The aged Lord Halifax, who is dead in London, was educated at Eton and Christ Church, Oxford and, as a young man, came directly under the influence of such memorable leaders in what was known as the Oxford Movement as Pusey and Keble. It is interesting to recall that the late Viscount lived such a length of years as to render him a link between the present and that time when the secession of Newman shook the English Church to its foundation. When only 29 years of age he was elected President of the English Church Union, one of the oldest and most powerful societies of Anglo-Catholic thought. On the part of Lord Halifax himself, however, it is certain that he never entertained the thought of "going over to Rome," as it was called. But of his passionate desire to behold the Union of Rome and Canterbury the whole of his career gave ample witness. In 1895 he went to Rome with two Church of England clergymen to try to bring the two churches nearer to one another. More than twenty years later he was the prime mover in initiating the famous Malines Conversations. The Conversations led at least to the establishment of a unique friendship. Five years afterwards Lord Halifax was called to the bedside of the dying Cardinal Mercier, and received from him a ring in token of their friendship.

Lord Halifax had another claim to distinction. He was chosen in early youth by the Prince Consort as a companion for King Edward. They were together at Eton and Christ Church. Strong ties of personal friendship sprang up between them.

In private life Viscount Halifax had great charm of manner and was fond of entertaining. Despite his erudition in matters ecclesiastical he was never a recluse. Until well advanced in years he rode to hounds. At one time he was a captain in the First West Riding Yeomanry cavalry.

Viscount Halifax is succeeded in the title by Lord Irwin, his son, former Viceroy of India.

HOOP PLAY WAS CLOSE

Great Battles Staged Last Night in Ladies' and Junior Basketball Fixtures

Senior League—Kalens, 40; Grotto, 41. Ladies' League—High School, 13; Comets, 15. Intermediate League—Warriors, 36; Merchants, 25. Junior League—Boy Scouts, 11; Trojans, 23.

Fans were treated to some good basketball last night with the ladies' and senior divisions putting on the best displays.

Trojans defeated the Scouts in a one-sided Junior League affair 23 to 11.

Warriors defeated the Merchants in an exciting Intermediate game. The Retailmen could not get going in the first half and the result was that they finished eight points behind their opponents at the interval. In the second half the Merchants started for town but ran out of gas 11 miles from home. The final score was 36 to 25.

The Comets and the Students put on one of the best games seen in the Ladies' division since the Adanaes-Maple Leaf days and, on floor play, the Seventh Avenue Students should have won. If the High School coach had used more of his subs they might have won.

The Grotto-Kalens Senior battle can go down in the books as one that should have been witnessed by three hundred instead of thirty fans.

In the first half the Grotto took an early lead and should have kept it but they didn't. With eight minutes to go of the first half, they were leading 13-3. Then the Ironmongers turned on the steam to finish all square, 15-15.

After the rest period the battle started with both sides doing a lot of scoring. Ratchford and Gurnich sinking the most of them for the Tobacconists and Kelsey, Scott and Wingham for the Kalens, when the smoke of battle cleared, the Grotto had a one-point lead, 41-40.
