KEEPING HAPPY

The greatest thing in the world, so far as the human race is concerned, is keeping happy. Anything that will make people happy will keep them healthy and well. Good cheer is real wealth.

In the old days the preachers tried to make people miserable in order to make them repent of their sins and thus save them for a life of joy in the world to come. Now we know that heaven is here, if we only realize it. Of the hereafter we have little information but we know a great deal about this life and we could know more if we were only in the right frame of mind.

The mind and the body react on each other. While bodily infirmity often has a deleterious effect on the mind, the mind is greater than the body and can control it. As we think so we are. If we think happy thoughts and try to make others happy, we become happy ourselves. All depends upon the mental attitude.

People who are happy radiate happiness and tend to make those around them happy. People who are sad radiate sadness and tend to make those around them miserable. Misery breeds sickness. Joy breeds health. The best doctor is he who can inspire his patients with the joy of living. The patients feel they want to live and they just naturally begin to get well. Happiness is the natural condition. All a doctor can do is to make adjustments so that nature can do the healing. When he makes the patient happy he has made the most important adjustment. Nature asserts her power and health follows.

Keep the body fit so that the mind may work freely and control it and bring that happiness which is heaven.
