DAMAGING EVIDENCE

Vivian MacMillan Gives Spicy Testimony in Damage Case Against Premier

Carryings-on

Girl Tells Alberta Supreme Court Of Numerous Intimacies Between Herself and Premier Brownlee

EDMONTON, June 27: (CP)—Vivian MacMillan continued her testimony yesterday in the Supreme Court civil action in which she claims damages from Premier J. E. Brownlee for alleged seduction.

The girl was cross-examined by A. L. Smith K.C. of Calgary, counsel for Premier Brownlee, who reminded her that she had told her counsel, Neil MacLean K.C., that Mr. Brownlee had given her pills to prevent conception. "It makes your story about saving his wife's life look peculiar," observed Mr. Smith.

"It may be peculiar but it's the truth," replied the girl.

Earlier Miss MacMillan had testified that Mr. Brownlee had told her he could not be intimate with his wife because, if she became pregnant, it would kill her.

In her statement of claim, Miss MacMillan had said that she stayed for seven weeks at the Premier's home and, during that time, she had been intimate with him nearly every night. Mrs. Brownlee was in the house at the time but the maid was absent.

Are You Ready?

Mr. Smith said: "In your examination you said the reason the Premier did not go into the maid's room, where your bed was, was because of squeaky floor and noisy springs. You said you went into the Premier's room nearly every night after midnight. You objected but he said his son, Jack, in one of the twin beds, would not awaken. You said 'He used to come and get me.' Is it true he would poke his head into the room and say: 'Are you ready?'"

"Yes," the girl replied.

TRACT IS ACQUIRED

Four Hundred Acres Of Park Land Taken Over By City From Railway

Future Asset

Construction Of Road From McClymont Park West Has Started

City Commissioner W. J. Alder announced that the city this month has acquired, by direct negotiation from the Canadian National Railway, all land lying between the foot of Mount Oldfield and the lane back of Ninth Avenue, and between McClymont Park and a point opposite Digby Island, comprising 406.55 acres, which, together with the forty acres formerly owned by the City in that area, makes 446.55 acres. The tract, the commissioner believes, has the possibility of being made one of the finest park areas of any city on the coast.

Many very fine trees that have stood for centuries have been cut down, but there is still the possibility of a very fine park area with some good timber still standing. There are also some picturesque waterfalls and streams which the commissioner feels will be one of Prince Rupert's most valuable assets when she has attained a greater population.

A road, which it is hoped may some day be turned into a fine boulevard, has already been built for a quarter of a mile through the property by using the ashes and waste material gathered daily in the city, and covering it with earth and rock. This is being done with practically no money outlay, and saves a long haul of two miles out the new road as well as eliminating the continuation of a nuisance there.
