REVIVAL IN MINING

Mining is also playing an important part in the industrial revival which appears so evident in Prince Rupert district this year. Almost daily this paper has important new developments to record in connection with the mining industry of Northern and Central British Columbia. Portland Canal, Terrace, Usk, Smithers, Burns Lake, Queen Charlotte Islands, Alice Arm and the coastal islands are all attracting attention, possibly in as great a degree today as they ever did before. Some very important developments are under way on several properties. The various operations are too numerous to mention individually.

A gratifying feature is that, whereas a year ago interest was being taken in gold, today silver, owing to the recent improvement in the price of that metal, is again commanding a large modicum of interest. Other less valuable metals are also stiffening up in price and this will also help, particularly when, as is so common in this district, they can be found in combination with the gold and silver.

THE ENDEAVOUR WINS

Undoubtedly like in many another place, the America's Cup yacht races between the American defender Rainbow and the British challenger Endeavour are an all-absorbing topic of discussion and interest in Prince Rupert. Somehow or other, these periodical contests for that historic old "mug," as the late-lamented Sir Thomas Lipton used to say, seem to strike the public fancy like few other amateur sporting events do. The tradition established by the great old British sportsman is as green as ever and, judging from the "no contest" race on Saturday and the close victories of the challenger so far, Endeavour and Rainbow are going to make a great contest of it this time.

We were thrilled yesterday and today as Tom Sopwith came through. The British boat might be expected to be a popular favorite from a sentimental standpoint. And we think that even the most of the American sportsmen would not feel so terribly cast down if, after so many years of hard and persistent trying by British boats, the America's Cup should be carried over to the other side again by the Endeavour. Of one thing we are sure—that, if it ever does get back there, no expense or effort will be spared by good American yachtsmen to bring it again to the United States.

Meantime, we will all continue to follow the present episode of the classic with a very keen interest.

McLarnin Wins Back World's Welterweight Title

Barney Ross Loses His Crown On Split Verdict After Furious Contest

Both Fighters Badly Battered Although There Were No Knockdowns in Entire Fifteen Rounds—Decision Gets Mixed Reception

NEW YORK, Sept. 18: (CP)—Before a crowd of 25,000 fans at Madison Square Garden Long Island Bowl last night, Jimmy McLarnin, belting two-fisted Irishman from Vancouver, won back his world's welterweight boxing championship title from Barney Ross, who took it away from him three months ago. McLarnin was declared the winner on a split decision of Referee Arthur Donovan and one of the judges after fifteen furious, slashing rounds. The crowd lustily booed the decision of the referee in breaking the judges' deadlock in McLarnin's favor. Cheers of McLarnin's supporters, however, drowned the boos.

The Loser

Barney Ross, decided by Jimmy McLarnin last night.

Both fighters were badly battered although there were no knockdowns. McLarnin's left eye was completely closed at the end of the fight and both of Ross' optics were damaged.

The fact that McLarnin smashed more solidly earned him the decision. Ross had the edge in speed and a remarkable fighting heart. Tommy Shortell, one judge, gave McLarnin six rounds and Ross five with four even. Charlie Lynch, the other judge, awarded Ross seven rounds, McLarnin six and two even. The referee gave McLarnin ten rounds and Ross five.

SPORT CHAT

Before the largest gathering of baseball fans that ever crowded into the Polo Grounds at New York, the St. Louis Cardinals, with the Dean brothers doing hurling duty, won both ends of a double-header from the New York Giants Sunday and reduced their National League leadership to three and a half games. The Cards took the first game by a score of 5 to 3 and the second, an 11-inning pitchers' duel between Paul Dean and Carl Hubbell, by a 3 to 1 count. Pepper Martin broke up the game with a homer with one on board.

Four double-headers were played Sunday but none were split, two games being won by the same team in each case.

Washington Senators, losing again to the pace-making Tigers at Detroit, slumped into seventh place in the American League below the Philadelphia Athletics who took a double-header from the Browns at St. Louis. The pennant lead of the Tigers were then five and a half games over the Yankees who lost to the Indians at Cleveland.
