Election Important But So is Fair.

The federal election is a very important event and should receive the closest consideration of all citizens. The Prince Rupert and district fair is also very important to this district and especially to the people of this city. It opens on election day and will also be a big event and one that should receive the full and undivided support of both Liberals and Conservatives and such other parties and people as may be represented here. Doubtless all will unite in this event. Divided on Tuesday they will come together that evening and the following few days and work in unison for the success of the annual exhibition and fair. By that time we shall all have had our political amusement and shall be ready to turn to local affairs for a healthy change.

Fight Close One in Vancouver Centre.

The big political fight between H. H. Stevens and Dugald Donaghy in Vancouver Centre is one of the most interesting seen for some time. Mr. Donaghy had retired from political life and was intending to devote himself to private practice but he saw what he considered a political injustice and he at once took off his hat, tightened his belt and spurred up to the great champion of probity and purity in Vancouver Centre and is meeting with a great deal of success. No one can tell what the result will be but there are many prominent Liberals who declare Stevens will be beaten and Donaghy will be a member of the Mackenzie King cabinet.

Old Age Pensions And Conservatives.

If the Old Age Pensions legislation introduced by Liberals last session was merely a sham, a fake, unworkable and all the other obnoxious things the Conservatives say it is, why did they not try to make it genuine and workable? asks the Victoria Times. Why did they not submit a scheme of their own when the measure was given its various readings in the House of Commons? Why did they reject it outright in the Senate instead of making such amendments as they deemed to be necessary? The majority sentiment in the House of Commons was in favor of old age pensions. If the Conservatives had submitted a better proposal than the Liberal measure, it would have been accepted, in part at any rate. The truth, of course, is that the Conservative Party in Parliament is opposed to Old Age Pensions. In this it is true to its record in Canada. Never has it been identified with any serious efforts to place such legislation upon the statute books of this country. Mr. Meighen in one of his humorous pre-election conversations now says that if he is elected he will consult the provinces and after they have agreed upon a measure will have it passed by Parliament. Obviously this is merely an expedient for shelving the whole question. We may be sure no such elaborate procedure would be employed by Mr. Meighen if the measure were designed to confer some special benefits upon the barons of special privilege who largely dictate the policies of his party.

BRITISH SETTLERS ARE DOING WELL CANADIAN FARMS

Representative of British Settlement Society Reports Favorably on Work.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 9.—Under the selective plan of immigration, the families being brought to Canada from Great Britain are proving themselves willing and energetic farmers and are making good, according to Rev. J. W. Whellans, overseas representative of the British Settlement Society, who left Winnipeg over the Canadian National Railways for Toronto last night.

Mr. Whellans has been spending the past few weeks in Manitoba and Saskatchewan visiting and investigating the forty families established in Canada this year by the British Settlement Society working in close co-operation with the immigration department of the Canadian National Railways. Without exception it was his experience to find all of the people firmly and happily established and possessed of a hopeful outlook. He stated that none had any criticism to offer of their treatment and that all considered their lot much more agreeable than in the British Isles.

In connection with the activities of the society in Great Britain, Mr. Whellans stated that lack of interest and lack of money were the two great obstacles which have to be overcome by those seeking to attract immigration of a desirable character to Canada. He considered that the former problem would be met gradually as those who have immigrated made good, but that the second difficulty is one of economics which can only be adjusted by some form of legislation or a general betterment of conditions that is not apparent at the present moment.

It's only twenty-one years since Alberta became a province and now she thinks she is just as good as the rest of us. Her sunny ways seem to have won out.

PANTS COVER ONLY HALF OF STOMACH

Dissatisfied B. C. Customer Writes to Edmonton Tailor Regarding Nether Garments

People in Prince Rupert who send away for their clothes should take a lesson from one B.C. resident who tried to buy in Alberta but was not suited. Here is the story as it appeared in an Edmonton newspaper: "Where does he wear 'em, anyway?" mused Chief of Police Shute, Friday morning, as he gazed earnestly on a letter just received from a man in the interior of British Columbia. The gentleman, it appears, ordered a pair of trousers from an Edmonton tailor. He paid $12.35 charges and express on them, and took the new pants home for a preliminary canter. They weren't satisfactory, so he decided to enlist the aid of Chief Shute, in collecting from the tailor, for the alleged misfits. So he mailed them to the chief with a polite little note asking the chief to see that the tailor called for the pants and paid the $12.35, plus $3 expenses incurred by the dissatisfied customer, in travelling to and from the nearest depot to receive the parcel.

But here's the sentence that causes the chief to wonder how they wear 'em in the wilds of British Columbia. "On the other hand, the trousers are too small in the seat, if only covers half my stomach" (spelling follows copy). "Does he wear them on his hands—and if so no wonder they are too small in the seat—but does he sit on his tummy?" murmured the chief, still worrying over the pants of the man from B.C.
