BRITISH COLUMBIA'S OPPORTUNITY

A proper outlet for the Peace River will be British Columbia's great opportunity for development. Let the new outlet be built by the best route and Northern British Columbia will flourish like the proverbial green bay tree. It matters little whether the line goes to Prince Rupert or to Stewart, the great thing is for it to be routed directly west from the Peace instead of south.

Any southerly route from the Peace will not serve British Columbia as a whole. It is claimed that it will build up Vancouver, but that city is already too big for the rest of the province. It is out of all proportion in population and size to the rural population. What is needed for British Columbia, including Vancouver, is to develop the northern part of the country and the only railway that will do it as well as serve the interests of the Peace is a line constructed westward from Peace River Pass.

As a first step toward the western outlet it has been suggested that the railway should be extended westerly along the north bank of the Peace River toward Fort St. John. We are in full agreement with that. There are hundreds of settlers already in that country waiting for the railway to come. Tonnage for the railway is already available. Let the railway be built westward into the Peace Pass and the next move will be to continue it westward through British Columbia.

THE ALTERNATIVE

The alternative to the western route is a suggested cut-off at Obed for the purpose of enabling the Alberta farmers to get a slightly more direct outlet to the coast. This would not serve British Columbia. There would be no British Columbia development result from it. For us in Northern British Columbia the only policy that would be beneficial would be a railway line passing through the vast undeveloped part of the country, giving an outlet not only for the farming people of the Peace River Block but also for the farmers in Northern Alberta.

EVANGELISM IS SUBJECT

Rev. Canon W. F. Rushbrook Inspiring Speaker at Luncheon Of Gyro Club Yesterday

"The Meaning of Evangelism" was the subject of Rev. Canon W. F. Rushbrook, rector of St. Peter's Anglican Church, yesterday in addressing the regular weekly luncheon of the Prince Rupert Gyro Club, his message being in connection with the special Lenten campaign of evangelism which is being conducted by the Protestant churches of the city. W. H. Tobey, past president of the club, was in the chair and other guests included Very Rev. James B. Gibson, dean of St. Andrew's Cathedral, and Rev. Lawrence Jensen, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, as well as Peter Sunderland of this city and M. W. McKenzie of Vancouver.

The deeper meaning of evangelism, Canon Rushbrook declared, involved a personal experience. Evangelism was the name given to a movement to introduce Jesus and His teaching into the practical life of today. Belief in Jesus, the speaker declared, was the key to the solution of the vexed problems of the world today. There were two means by which Jesus might be seen, the historical and the experimental means. To see Jesus by the historical means, Canon Rushbrook prescribed study of the biographies of Jesus as given in the first four books of the New Testament. Then there were books apart from the Bible which might be read according to individual choice or requirements. The speaker then went on to refer to some of the work of the evangelists and preachers.

Through knowledge of and familiarity with Jesus and His teachings man would find that the only permanent worth-while values were the moral values. They who thought more of their buildings, of their worldly wealth and, even of their daily work, had not yet found Jesus. After all, man's character was the thing that really mattered.

Needs of Today In closing, Canon Rushbrook read the following quotation: "The circumstances confronting the world can brook no delay; they require immediate action, if the world is to be saved from greater calamity and suffering. Let the first note be one of deep personal repentance. We all have sinned. We have been a part of the system which has failed, because of its underlying principle—selfishness, the very negation of the Love of God; we have sympathized too much with its ideals, and accepted its standards of life and shared in its benefits. We cannot, therefore, altogether escape responsibility for its consequences. Humbly do we turn to God and confess our sin, 'Father forgive us, we have sinned against Thee and our fellow-men.' Then with unfeigned contrition we consecrate ourselves anew to Christ and co-operate to awaken and recall all the members of the church, which is the Body of Christ, to the sense of their responsibility and privilege, that they may show the Spirit of His Life in every action of their daily lives; and to work enthusiastically to bring the careless, the indifferent, and all those who have lost the consciousness of God into His Way of Life. That is the great purpose of our evangelism."

selves to His service. "I am not despondent, not hopeless," declared the Bishop. "There is a sign of going in the world today. There has never been a time when men have been more inclined to speak of God in connection with the every day affairs of life. Leaders are linking themselves up with God. Never before have there been seen services of public devotion, such as those recently called in Vancouver and Toronto, in England. Baldwin admits the need of the Kingdom of God. There is a movement going on but there is much work to be done in the hearts of each and every one of us. Faith and hope will assure victory. Let us in our corner help to make Canada a Dominion of God, a new heaven and a new earth."

In conclusion, the Bishop appealed to all to do their share in casting out the enemies of Christ, such as disbelief, materialism or indifference. "Let us not idle on the way but put our whole lives and hearts 'into it,'" he exhorted.

Form of Service Rev. Dr. F. W. Dafoc, pastor of First Baptist Church, was chairman of the service. In opening he referred briefly to the need of spiritual uplift in Prince Rupert. He hoped that the present campaign of evangelism would result in a different attitude.

The invocation was led by Canon W. F. Rushbrook, rector of St. Peter's Anglican Church, and there was repetition in unison of the Lord's Prayer.

Adjutant Eva Laycock of the Salvation Army read the Scripture Lesson after which the Apostles' Creed was repeated.

Prayer of intercession was offered by Rev. W. D. Grant Hollingworth, pastor of First Presbyterian Church.

Announcements were made by Very Rev. James B. Gibson, dean of St. Andrew's Cathedral, of a World's Day of Prayer service for women to be held Friday afternoon in First Baptist Church, a united prayer meeting of all denominations in First Baptist Church Friday evening with an overflow meeting in First Presbyterian Church if necessary, and special services in all churches on Sunday dealing with "The Aims of Evangelism."

Dean Gibson expressed the appreciation of the Prince Rupert Ministerial Association to the management and staff of the Capitol Theatre, to the Junior Symphony Orchestra, the male quartet and the press for assistance in connection with this meeting. Offertory blessing was also pronounced by Dean Gibson.

Rev. W. H. Pierce, retired United Church pastor, read the Benediction.

Music of Service Music of the service included the singing of "Amen With Thee," by a male quartet consisting of J. E. Davey, J. A. Teng, S. J. Hunter and Judge W. E. Fisher. Hymns, accompanied by the Junior Symphony Orchestra under leadership of A. C. Cameron, and with J. E. Davey leading the community singing, were "Unto the Hills Do I Lift Up Mine Eyes," "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name" and "The Church's One Foundation." For half an hour before the opening of the service there was a specially arranged program of recorded sacred music. The Doxology at opening was also sung in unison.

TRIP WAS PERILOUS

Greenville Village Gives Thanks As Church Army Party Returns From Arduous Mission

GREENVILLE, March 7.—On Tuesday night of last week amid icy darkness, the Greenville band of Church Army workers returned from a strenuous trip to Aiyansh over dangerous ice and under very trying conditions. Having been taken off the ice and brought ashore by boats, they were met by the majority of the villagers and all paraded in procession around the village, ending up at St. Zenobius' Church where a short service of thanksgiving for their safe return was held.

Considerable preparations had been made by the Woman's Auxiliary and everybody was invited to the feast and concert. Seventeen tables were set and a well planned procession of Woman's Auxiliary members and Little Helpers ended with two servers taking their stand at each table.

The Greenville Band, under the leadership of Herbert Robinson, entertained during the feast which was all that could be desired. A short speech by Chief Leonard Douglas was followed with the singing of "Roll, Jordan, Roll," by the Woman's Auxiliary and Little Helpers. "Free at Last" was rendered by the Helpers' League. The concert concluded with the Woman's Auxiliary singing "The Church Has One Foundation," led by Chief Sam McKay. This was made very interesting by being sung in the native tongue.

Speeches were then made by Chief Peter Calder, Chief Councillor Russ and Captain Sam Gray after which Captain Fred McKay gave a full account of the twelve-day trip and of the services held by them at Canyon City, Aiyansh and Ghatdamiks.
