Jim Walsh Gives His Interpretation Of Incidents at Regina And Vancouver

Discussing the recent riots at Regina in which relief camp trekkers were involved and the waterfront strike situation at Vancouver, Jim Walsh of Vancouver, who was one of the committee which interviewed Premier Bennett and his cabinet at Ottawa on behalf of relief camp men. was the speaker at a meeting in the Moose Hall here last night under the auspices of the British Columbia Joint Defence Committee. The meeting was presided over by Thomas, McKen-

Two resolutions were presented to the meeting and passed. One demanded that a public inquiry board should be appointed to investigate the causes of the Regina riot and place responsibility for same, the trial of Arthur Evans and thirtyone others who are charged with unlawful assembly under Section 98 as a result of the riot to be deferred until after the inquiry and all the accused to be released on bail meantime. The second resolution demanded that, as the Vancouver Shipping Federation and the police were the belligerents in the Ballantyne Pier riot at Vancouver and as waterfrent workers were innocent of any crime except protecting their jebs, thirty-two longshoremen and seamen facing charges of inciting to riot be immediately released.

Mr. Walsh, at some length, gave details of events leading up to the riot at Regina. Having been unable to get satisfaction from either municipal authorities in Vancouver or the provincial government at Victoria in their demands against conditions existing in the relief camps, decision had been made to trek to Ottawa. Railway authorities had co-operated in various ways in moving the trekkers. There was public support on every

Port Essington Couple Married

Miss Polly Maybelle Priest Becomes Bride Of Norman Greenwood Pratt

The marriage of Norman Greenwood Pratt, only son of Mr. and The World's Prize W Mrs. H. V. Pratt of Vancouver, and Miss Polly Maybelle Priest, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Priest . of Wistaria, took place at the mill residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. A., * Brown recently. The bride, given in marriage by J. A. Brown, looked charming in her floor length gown of chocolate brown taffeta and old gold silk net. Pink and white sweet Peas and Gypsophila formed her corsage bouquet. She was attended as matron of honor, by Mrs. J. A Brown, who was gowned in orchid silk crepe. S. R. Donaldson supported the groom.

Following the ceremony the bridal party partook of a delicious 'uncheon, the bridal tab' being centred with a three tier wedding cake. For travelling the bride chose a brown cloth suit, mink trimmed, with a brown hat and matching accessories. The couple will reside in Port Essington.

The ceromony, performed by the Rev. Frank Bushfield, took place in a corner of the living room. which was prettily arranged with flowers and trailing vines.

Mr. Pratt is the manager of Brown's general store here The bride was formerly engaged in teaching at Port Essington.
