Opening of Halibut Season on March 1 as Forecast— Prince Charles Going on Run Next Week-To Manufacture Halibut Liver Oil Here

WATERFRONT WHIFFS

Announcement was made this week by the International Fisheries Commission confirming March 1 as the opening date of the 1935 halibut fishing season in Pacific waters. While it had been generally expected that this would be the date, the official announcement will give a filip to preparations for the year's operations by the fleet and there will no doubt be an immediate and 4

Extensive repairs had to be made to the foundation of the building in any case so it was decided, while this was being done, to move the structure to the new Dr. Carson went north at 2 o'clock location which is a considerably more suitable and accessible one. The tearing down is about completed preparatory to removing the material to the new site.

Hand trollers in waters hereabouts are picking up the odd spring salmon but there is no run to speak of as yet. On the local retail market, the fish are still at a premium and are commanding a high price.

To Manufacture Oi!

Dr. J. H. Carson has taken over the building at the far east end of the Government Wharf and is establishing there a plant for the manufacture on a modest scale at first of halibut liver oil. The necessary machinery is now being installed and the plant is to be in operation this spring. For the present at least, the product will probably be turned out in bulk and disposed of to drug distributors.
