THE POLITICAL CORNER

OLD AGE PENSIONS

In April 1924 a special committee of the House of Commons was appointed on the motion of Mackenzie King to make inquiries into an old age pension system for Canada.

In 1926 an Old Age Pensions Bill was, after much debate and criticism from the then Conservative opposition led by Mr. Bennett, adopted by the Liberal House of Commons. The Conservative party, however, had a majority in the Senate and the bill was defeated in that chamber.

The Liberals did not let the matter rest there. In the following year after the general election of 1926 Mackenzie King again introduced this Old Age Pensions Bill identical in terms with the one the Tories had defeated and this time it was passed by both Houses. On July 2nd, 1930, speaking at Yarmouth, N.S., Mr. Bennett said:

"If the Conservative party is successful on July 28th I will see to it that Old Age Pensions are paid to every province of the Dominion from the Federal treasury. It is a national obligation. If the Dominion can pay 50 percent (the amount called for in Mackenzie King's Bill), why cannot it pay 99 percent?"

Mr. Bennett has not kept his pledge and in 1935 the provinces still pay 25 percent and no pensions at all are paid in Quebec or New Brunswick.

And yet after opposing the original introduction of Old Age Pensions by Mackenzie King and after failing to implement his pledge of 1930 Mr. Bennett had the effrontery to say in his recent radio broadcast, "If you don't want your old people cared for then vote for Taschereau and King."

What can we say of the good faith of a man who will so traduce his political opponent in order to gain public office?

In order to be elected again he is now making a new set of promises about pensioning people over 60, which promises he will break, should he be elected, just as he broke the above promise made in 1930.
