WAR CLOUDS CLEARING

Much to the relief of all, the war clouds in Europe are clearing away again. An attitude of tolerance and understanding appears to be developing out of the distrust and fear. It was rather better than we had hoped for that Germany should decide to enter into an Eastern Europe security pact and that France should withdraw her protest to the League of Nations at Germany's re-arming. Once again Great Britain and Italy, possibly in a lesser degree, have proven the peace-makers. Undoubtedly, the possibility of Great Britain joining with the other nations against him was the actuating factor in Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's right about face in regard to the security pact.

The present basis of understanding may not obviate an armament race but it at least seems to establish the fact that the nations which are so anxious to arm are not actuated as much by the desire to fight as by the desire to preserve peace. Evidently, they believe that the most effective means of preventing war is to be in a position where they may be able, if necessary, to fight for peace.

THE EARL OF DUNDONALD

The Earl of Dundonald will long be remembered in Canada for the stormy controversy surrounding his term as General Officer Commanding the Canadian militia from 1902 to 1904 when his plans for reorganization of the Canadian fighting forces had him continually at loggerheads with the government until he was relieved.

His stay in the Dominion, punctured by public addresses here and there, had the whole country stirred up. "What the government clearly wanted," he wrote years later, "was the dumb general who would be content to serve his time, shrug his shoulders and go. But the patriotic people of Canada were with me as was proved by the numerous comments in the press."

Dundonald said of his first meeting with Prime Minister Sir Wilfrid Laurier: "His manners were old-world and courteous. He ended his conversation with me by saying: 'You must not take the militia seriously, for though it is useful for suppressing internal disturbances it will not be required for the defence of the country, as the Monroe doctrine protects us against enemy aggression.'"

This was the start of his troubled time in Canada. Dundonald said he left the Prime Minister, "feeling much disturbed. Here was I sent out to reorganize the militia and the Prime Minister saying quite frankly that he advised me not to take the force seriously. Had I taken his hint what an easy period of command I could have had."

Lord Dundonald's tours of inspection gave him a most unfavorable impression of the general equipment of the Canadian militia and of their training. He had nothing but the warmest praise for officers and men of the Canadian militia. His grievances were against certain ministers and their subordinates.

BALAGNO IN LEAD

Final of City Billiard Championship Proves Interesting Affair

The first block of 500 points in the final of the city billiard championship last evening ended with C. P. Balagno having 501 points to Nell Cameron's 485.

At the start Cameron was well ahead but Balagno caught up and, at the adjournment, was only 15 points behind. On resuming, Balagno continued to catch up and the players were tied at 250, tied again at 271 and at 307. At this stage Balagno ran up a fine 53 break and established a useful lead.

At one time Balagno was 60 points ahead but Cameron kept catching up and, with both players missing easy shots, the spectators were kept in a continuous state of excitement as the prospect of either player establishing a big lead grew dim. With only one point needed for the 500 block, Balagno left Cameron an awkward position but the latter negotiated an 18 break to bring him within 16 points of the city champion.

Altogether the game is as expected. Neither player is giving anything away and, while a break is always possible, the excitement makes them miss many an easy opening. The second block continues tonight and the third and final on Tuesday evening. There was a capacity house last evening again.

SPORT CHAT

The second half of the Ladies' Bowling League will get under way tonight with Blue Birds meeting Doodlads and Grotto playing the Strikers.
