ODD FILM THRILLER

"Thunder in the East" Unusual And Colorful, Featuring Japanese Naval Story

A most unusual and very satisfying piece of screen entertainment is said to be presented in "Thunder in the East," the picture which comes to the Capitol Theatre here this week-end. Charles Boyer, Merle Oberon and John Loder have the principal roles.

Played against a colorful Japanese background, the film depicts an eternal triangle story with a refreshing new flavor and decidedly novel twist. Boyer plays the part of a titled Japanese naval commander, obsessed with patriotism, who wins a naval battle against an unidentified enemy but realizes that the victory left much to be desired. Stationed aboard his ship as a neutral observer is Fergan, a young English officer, from whom the Japanese tries unsuccessfully to learn where his tactics were at fault. Thereupon, he uses his lovely young wife as a foil to obtain the secret from the Englishman. The Japanese commander finally obtains the documents he desires and there ensues an amazing battle which has a tragic ending for all parties concerned.

Visitor From Denver, Colorado, Finding It Difficult To Tear Himself Away From Prince Rupert

H. S. Gunning, identified with the Burlington Railroad in Denver, Colorado, has been a visitor in Prince Rupert since last Tuesday night in the course of a vacation trip and has become so enamored of the place that he is finding it difficult to tear himself away. He had planned on leaving by this evening's train on his return home but has decided to extend his visit until Monday evening.

"I have been around a bit," said Mr. Gunning this morning "but this is the most beatiful country I have ever seen in my life. Your town has a sort of individuality about it that I have never encountered elsewhere. I have fallen completely in love with Prince Rupert. Your cool fresh air is something that must appeal to all people coming from such parts of the country as I do where it is impossible to rest comfortably at night owing to heat."

Mr. Gunning is highly enthusiastic about the scenery in British Columbia, particularly in the mountains. His only disappointment is that he did not bring members of his family with him so they could have gone on a fishing expedition. However, he promises himself to come back some day and bring them with him. He left Denver on July 3 and has been in New Orleans, the Middle West and elsewhere.
