CATHEDRAL XMAS TREE

Program, Games and Supper Enjoyed With Santa Claus Also Paying Visit

The annual Christmas Tree entertainment of the Sunday School of St. Andrew's Anglican Cathedral was held yesterday afternoon, drawing a large number of children as well as many of the parents to the Cathedral Hall. The proceedings opened at 4 o'clock and continued until 9 p.m. An excellent program was presented by the children followed by the playing of games and the serving of supper. Santa Claus, of course, made a call and distributed sweets for all. The hall had been especially decorated for the occasion and there was a big Christmas Tree.

The program included piano solo by Catherine Baker, sword dance by Jean Ayres, song by Mary Baker, duet by Beverly and Jimmy Barry, recitation by May Leach, Highland Fling by Ann Greggor, Arlene Fitzgerald and Jean Ayres; duet by Helen Doedor and Margaret Smith, tap dancing by Margaret Davies and song by Rose Clavring, Misses Catherine Baker and Norma Smith were accompanists.

Christmas Trees At Terrace Are Greatly Enjoyed

TERRACE, Dec. 28.—The weekend preceding Christmas at Terrace was enlivened by children's parties with Santa Claus visiting the gatherings and distributing presents to all from heavily laden Christmas trees.

A "community tree" was held in the Oddfellows' Hall. The affair was attended by some two hundred persons and taxed the capacity of the hall which was recently enlarged and renovated. There was a program prior to the visit of Santa Claus.

Prior to this affair there was a whist drive and dance in the same hall to raise funds. Merchants, private citizens and lodges also assisted the fund.

There were also Christmas trees by other fraternal organizations including the Orange Lodge as well as by the churches.

with the entertainment were Mrs. W. A. McLean, Mrs. Leach, Mrs. J. B. Gibson, Miss I. Brennan, Miss Eileen Gibson, Miss Ruth Nelson, Miss Marybelle Stiles, Miss Jean McLean, Miss Noreen Gibson, E. W. Tucker and Dean Gibson.

Cardena Steward Believed to Have Fallen Overboard—Halibut Fishing Season Closes—Only Two Local Boats Still Out

Giving further details of the circumstances surrounding the supposed fatality early Christmas morning when Ernest Holland, night saloonsman, is believed to have been lost overboard in the Gulf of Georgia between Cape Lazo and Campbell River, Capt. John Muir, master of the steamer Cardena, which arrived here yesterday afternoon from the south, expressed the belief that Holland might have been suffering from seasickness and fallen overboard.

Holland is believed to have been lost between 3:30 a.m., when he spoke to a deckhand between decks, and 5:15 a.m. when the Cardena docked at Campbell River. He told the deckhand that he was not feeling very well and intended to lie down. He asked the deckhand to call the day staff about 5 a.m. There was a stiff southeast wind blowing at the time and the ship was rolling somewhat. Holland had waited upon Capt. Muir when he went to the dining saloon at midnight. He appeared to be feeling well and in good spirits at that time. Later in the morning, after the captain was advised that Holland was missing, a thorough search was made of the ship but no trace was found. The police were notified on arrival of the steamer at Alert Bay.

The possibility of Holland having gone ashore at Campbell River and being left there was considered but the chances of his having done this are considered very remote. All his clothing and effects, with the exception of what he was wearing on duty, were found in his quarters.

Holland was 32 years of age and had worked on the Cardena for some time. He was a stepson of the regular chief steward, David Singleton, at present ashore in Vancouver on vacation, and was married. He lived in Vancouver and his wife had gone to Victoria to spend Christmas.

Capt. Muir is relieving for a month as master of the Cardena while Capt. J. E. Boden, the regular skipper, is ashore on vacation. Charles Braggington, second steward, is relieving Chief Steward David Singleton.

Halibut Fishing Ends

The North Pacific halibut fishing season closed at midnight on Thursday, at which time boats still remaining on the Portlock and Albatross fishing banks of Area No. 3 lifted their gear and started heading homeward. The Sea Maid, Capt. Henry Doiron, and Lysekil, Capt. Al Woie, were the only Prince Rupert boats still out when the season closed. There were, however, some forty Seattle schooners still out and the expectation is that the most of these will run right through to Puget Sound with their catches. The closing of fishing saw the quota for the season in Area No. 3, set at 24,300,000 pounds by the International Fisheries Commission, exhausted.

During the past week only three boats landed catches at Prince Rupert, their total being 49,000 pounds. Two were Canadian boats and one American. They were: Canadian—Balsac, 2,000, 7.1c and 6c; Cape Beale, 31,000, 7.4c and 6.5c; American—Explorer, 16,000, 7.5c and 6c.

This brought the grand total of landings for the season up to 11,861,150 pounds of which 5,325,850 pounds was from Canadian boats and 6,535,300 pounds from American.

It is expected that the following week will see the few straggling catches still to be brought in safely landed. Norman L. Freeman, local representative of the International Fisheries Commission, will sail on the Princess Norah tomorrow morning on his final trip of the season to Juneau, Ketchikan and other Southeastern Alaska points on official business. Soon after his return to the city in about a week's time, he will leave for Seattle to spend some time at Commission headquarters there.

The local halibut boat Teeny Milly, Capt. George Cook, returned to port at 9 o'clock Christmas Eve from a three weeks' trip to Vancouver and New Westminster. Those making the trip, besides Capt. Cook, were Bob Irvine, Bruce Stevens and Gordon Ronson. They went south on business in connection with a new enterprise for the shipment of sea shells to Vancouver and New Westminster. The market is favorable and, so far, good progress has been made in the undertaking.

No boats being in with catches, there was no sale of halibut on the local fish exchange this morning.

Capt. John Clausen, well known local fish packer, and Mrs. Clausen sailed last night on the Cardena for a vacation trip to Vancouver and elsewhere in the south.

INSURED FOR ONE HOUR

BRISTOL, Eng., Dec. 28: (CP)—Michael Paine, local business man, was insured against death for $250,000—but only for one hour while he was being entertained at luncheon on his fiftieth birthday. The policy, a gift of his friends, was placed with Lloyd's at a cost of about $40.
