DIFFICULT TO FOLLOW

Premier Bennett, in his radio addresses, promises so much that it is difficult for the ordinary individual to keep in mind all the things he has said he will do. The new policies come rolling out one after another. Almost every Liberal and Labor policy of the past twenty years has been adopted by the Prime Minister in toto. Evidently he is resolved to outdo anything that ever in the past has been done by any person or party. And he has not yet finished. There are more addresses to be given and more promises to be made.

One of the Vancouver papers has been criticizing Premier Pattullo for making so many promises during his SKIING IS election campaign. Yet anyone who turns back to the reports of his speeches will find that he promised hardly anything. He urged work and wages as a policy but admitted that it would be only through the co-operation of the federal government that he could hope to do anything. But Local he presaged that the federal government would be forced by circumstances over which it had not control to take ac-

Although 75 years of age he is still working on the job of trying to convince everybody that his calendar proposal is the right one. He is supported by the League of Nations and is directing the campaign on their behalf.

It is to be hoped that this British Columbian will see his work in calendar reform completed before he dies. At any rate he is within measurabe distance of success and he is still as keen as ever.

Dunlop Putting

So this is the famous St. Andrews course, we've heard so much about, American golf fans would be more interested in the landscape than in this putting scene during the Walker Cup tournament Notice the treacherous dunes in the bacground. It's bad business to hook or slice in that territory.

The Strangest Kiss In All Animaldom

Usually a cat looks upon a rat as nothing more than a one-course dinner. Buddy is of different ilk. He is shown in an affectionate pose with a Newfoundland friend; a white rodent of fearless nature. The two strange "friendly enemies" are owned by Joseph Lantione of Albany, N.Y.
