Two Thousand Men On "Ottawa March" Reach Saskatchewan Capitol

Expect to Remain There Over Week-End and Trouble May Come When Police Try to Prevent Departure—Being Fed at Exhibition Grounds By Provincial Government

REGINA, June 14: (CP)—Two thousand relief camp strikers reached here this morning from Moose Jaw, formed fours and marched to the Exhibition Grounds where they were fed by the Saskatchewan government. Three hundred Royal Canadian Mounted Police and one hundred railway police were on hand to prevent the men from boarding trains enroute to Ottawa. There was no trouble today. The men plan on remaining here over the week-end.

Premier J. G. Gardiner of Saskatchewan yesterday made telegraphic protest to Premier R. B. Bennett against the move to detain relief camp strikers in Saskatchewan. Now that they had been permitted to leave British Columbia, Premier Gardiner felt they should be allowed to continue to Ottawa. He objected vigorously at Saskatchewan being made a dumping ground for the men.

HOLOCAUST TERRIBLE

From 100 to 1000 Estimated Dead In German Munitions Factory Explosion Yesterday

WITTENBERG, Germany, June 14: (CP)—Complete censorship was clamped down yesterday on the stricken area of the village of Rheindorf following two terrific explosions in the Westfalian-Anhalt munitions factory. The entire district is reported to be in shambles with the death list placed at anywhere from 100 to 1000 persons. So far fifty-two are known to be dead. Only a very few of the 13,000 employees in the plant, one of the most up-to-date of its kind in the world, escaped injury.

Fires, breaking out after the explosion, were still raging last night in the ruins and there were frightful scenes of death and destruction.

GREAT WORK OF DOCTORS

Many Scientific Discoveries Made By Members of the Medical Profession Recently

Yesterday was Doctor's Day at the Rotary Club, about ten members of the profession being present and a Vancouver physician being the speaker for the day. Dr. Murray Baird spoke interestingly on "The Science and Art of Medicine," particularly the science end of the subject. He traced the rise of the profession from the early days when white magic and black magic were about the only things known.

The speaker pointed out that civilization as it is today could not exist without the medical man. Take the Panama Canal as an instance. It was the medical men who made its building possible and without the medical profession today, it would be impossible to keep it open.

MAHAM STILL BELIEVED IN HILLS NEAR BUTTE

BUTTE, Mont., June 14:—Although unconfirmed reports had come from widely separated points of trace having been found of him, William Mahan, third member of the Weyerhaeuser kidnapping gang, was still believed last night to be in hiding somewhere in the mountains not far from Butte. Among the reports was one that a man answering Mahan's description had begged for food at Livingston in Yellowstone National Park. It was suggested he might be heading for his native home in Adora, Sask. No new ransom money has appeared.

Previous to the battle, Baer had won 45 bouts, 38 by kayoes. Nobody was more surprised than Braddock himself when Referee Joe McEvoy, after his consultation with the judges, held up the arm of the winner. "He didn't even hurt me," declared Braddock whom, at the beginning of the fight, few believed would be able to last more than three rounds.

The 25-year old "play boy" Baer was obviously dejected as he left the ring. He was unhurt but had wasted too much time clowning and did not do enough fighting. Braddock landed first in the opening round and, by forcing the fighting, won the round although the blows he landed did not bother the champion. Baer opened up in the second and made Braddock flinch with a terrific right body blow following with a stiff right to the jaw to win the round. Clowning

Three years ago the 29-year old Braddock was considered a "has been" and for the past two years had been little better than on relief.

There were no knockdowns.

Max Baer Goes Down to Defeat in Great Upset; Lost Nine of 15 Rounds

Challenger Entered Ring With Betting Odds Five to One Against Him and Yielded Nearly Twenty Pounds In Weight to Champion

WILL MEET SCHMELING NEXT YEAR
NEW YORK, June 14: (CP)—James J. Braddock, the new world's heavyweight boxing champion, agreed today to defend the title for Madison Square Garden against Max Schmeling, the former champion, in the summer of 1936, thus eliminating any chance of a championship fight in September.

NEW YORK, June 14: (CP)—In one of the biggest upsets in the history of the prize ring, as well as one of the poorest excuses for a major title bout, Jim Braddock, the New Jersey Irish-American stevedore, last night captured the world's heavyweight boxing title from Max Baer, who clowning himself to defeat. The challenger, whom practically all pugilistic experts predicted would be unable to go the full distance and who entered the ring the longest shot in heavyweight championship prize fight history with betting odds of up to ten to one against him as well as giving the champion nearly twenty pounds in weight, not only stayed on his feet but almost out-boxed the giant Californian and was awarded nine of the fifteen rounds. The referee said that Baer lost six rounds by fouling. The decision was unanimous. The battle took place at Madison Square Garden's Long Island Bowl where the gathering of 30,000 spectators, paying less than $200,000 gate, virtually went wild.

Three years ago the 29-year old Braddock was considered a "has been" and for the past two years had been little better than on relief.
